German Planes In Flight Over Scottish and British Areas

Fighters and Anti-Aircraft Batteries Kept Busy

TWO SHIPS LOST

Britain Ready to Strike Back Against All Nazi Bombings

London—(P)—German raiders appeared today off the strategic Firth of Forth in Scotland and the estuaries of the Humber and Thames on England's eastern coast the air ministry announced.

No bombs were dropped and no alarms were sounded as the renewed flights of the Nazis over the British coast met quick resistance from British fighters and anti-aircraft batteries.

The Evening News said that the last 24 hours had been the busiest faced by the royal air force since the war began and the British fliers "have had to fight their fiercest battles."

Today's flights brought the first German air visits of the war to the Tyne, important shipbuilding and shipping center.

The air ministry said German planes attempting to bomb a merchant vessel off the Norfolk coast were intercepted and driven off by defense fighters.

Its communiqué said "considerable air activity off the east coast of England and Scotland" occurred during the morning and listed raids at Newcastle-on-Tyne, the Firth of Forth and the Humber and Thames estuaries.

Reported Driven Back
One plane appeared over South Shields on the south bank of the Tyne. One report said three raiders reached the region and six British fighters went up to chase them away.

Fragments of anti-aircraft shells fell in the streets of South Shields during 10 minutes of firing. Spectators over a wide area were endangered, but rushed out nevertheless to pick up the bits for souvenirs.

Windows of a bus were shattered. After once being driven away, a raider circled and returned above South Shields and again was fired upon.

Three large black planes believed by observers to be German were chased to sea by British fighters over the southeast coast of Scotland. Crowds on the cliffs of an east coast resort watched a bomber attack a small steamer about seven miles from shore.

See Ship Burning
Explosions were heard and the steamer was seen to be blazing. A lifeboat put out while British fighters drove off the attacker.

Subsequently another steamer, believed to be Italian, struck a mine off the east coast.

The crew took to lifeboats and awaited a tug to pick them up as the regular lifeboat on the shore had gone to the aid of those from the bombed vessel.

Numerous heavy explosions were heard off the southeast coast today, beginning with a terrific blast at 6:30 a. m. (12:30 a. m. C. S. T.) believed either mines or bombs.

Accounts of the large scale royal air force raid on the German island of Sylt yesterday still were incomplete but observers regarded them as a sign of Britain's readiness to strike back hard against Nazi bombings.

London newspapers said up to 50 British and German warplanes engaged in a day-long fight over the

AWARDED FORTUNE

Annie Laurie Dodge (above), 21-year-old widow of Danny Dodge and former telephone operator at Gore Bay, Ontario, has been awarded $1,250,000 from the estate of her husband under terms of a probate decision in Detroit. She is a student at Alma college at St. Thomas, Ontario.

Widow Will Get Entire Fortune Of H. L. Doherty

Affidavit Places Net Value at 'Substantially' Over $1,000,000

New York—(P)—Henry L. Doherty's great fortune, composed mostly of Cities Service securities and Florida real estate, has been bequeathed in its entirety to his widow, who before her marriage 11 years ago had nursed him through a critical illness.

The will of the 69-year-old utilities magnate, who died Dec. 26 in Philadelphia, was filed for probate today. It was brief and the only beneficiary listed was Mrs. Grace Doherty, the widow.

There was no value placed upon the estate, other than the usual formal declaration that it was "more than $100,000." An appraisal for tax transfer purposes will be made later.

In an affidavit, however, which the widow filed with the will, the net value of the estate was placed at "substantially in excess of $1,000,000."

No Estimate Given
Doherty was described as a resident of New York. His entire fortune is in securities of Henry L. Doherty and Company, Inc. of which he owned all the stock. This firm was set up in 1923.

While no official estimate of his Cities Service holdings was given in the will, it can be said authoritatively that he was the largest stockholder in the company, and that he personally controlled or owned 55 per cent of the total issues.

Prior to the depression of 1929, when Cities Service stock was quoted above $50 a share, his personal fortune, purportedly had a paper value of more than $100,000,000.

U. S. Must Consider Possible Defeat of Allies, Stark States

Washington—(P)—Admiral Harold R. Stark told congress today in considering the proposed $1,300,000,000 expansion of the fleet "we must face the possibility of an allied defeat" in the current European war.

Testifying before the house naval affairs committee, the chief of naval operations declared that in determining this country's defense needs, the possibility that the navies of the European democracies might be wiped out must be taken into account.

"Then we must measure the strength of any potential combinations of enemies," he added.

Roosevelt Favors 'Super-Tax' To Pay for National Defense But Wants Congress Initiative

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt looks with favor on a 10 per cent "super-tax" on the income tax to pay emergency national defense costs, administration officials said today, but he wants congressional leaders to take the initiative in framing proposals.

The "super-tax," although still an informal idea, might be applied retroactively to 1939 income as well as to 1940 income. A taxpayer would compute his levy in the usual way and then add 10 per cent to the total.

These sources predicted that the response to the president's budget message request for $460,000,000 in additional taxes probably would be developed after Chairman Doughton (D-N. C.) consults the house ways and means committee, Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) consults the senate finance committee, and both confer with the president and Secretary Morgenthau.

Officials said that the president virtually eliminated all but income

Defense Fund Aims at Peace, House Is Told

"Not War Program," Woodrum Asserts as He Urges Approval

DEBATE IS OPENED

President Transmits Report on Progress of Resources Study

Washington—(P)—The house was asked today to approve President Roosevelt's request for $267,000,000 for emergency defense outlays as a peace program—"not a war program."

Representative Woodrum (D-Va.), house appropriations committee, made the statement as debate opened on legislation to appropriate that sum. He criticized those persons who claimed the new funds meant that the United States was about to go to war or about to be attacked.

"Some say, who are we going to fight—whose getting ready to jump on us?" Woodrum remarked. "The same reasoning applies to the question of why have any army at all."

"If there's one thing that America has learned it is that anything can happen anywhere. Let us not say that it can't happen here. America is not getting ready to make war on anybody. We're preparing for peace. This is not a war program, it's a peace program, and America has always stood for peace."

Would Cut Deficit
Woodrum began his remarks by pledging "100 per cent" cooperation with President Roosevelt's expressed hope of trying to reduce next year's deficit and to keep from going above the statutory $45,000,000,000 federal debt limit.

President Roosevelt transmitting a progress report of the national resources committee, told congress that "provision for the wise use and conservation of our national resources must necessarily be one of the primary responsibilities of the federal government at all times."

The committee, which has been absorbed by the national resources planning board, made a report

Hear Testimony on Fund for Police

LaFollette Group Told of Cash Raised by Garment Manufacturers

Los Angeles—(P)—The senate civil liberties committee had in its records today the story of how Los Angeles garment manufacturers, beset by a strike in 1936, raised a fund for police officers assigned to guard their plants.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., chairman of the committee, read from bank books of the Southern California Garment Manufacturers' association the record of payments totaling $769.50.

Nelson R. Wolfe, former secretary of the association, testified he collected the money from its members and paid it in cash to Captain William F. Hynes, former head of the police intelligence squad.

Lieutenant Ralph A. Wellcott and Police Officer William C. Shurley, who said they were assigned to garment workers' strike duty, told the committee the money came to them, still in cash, through the office of the bureau.

Afterward Captain Hynes appeared at his own request to explain that the practice was of long standing in the police department. During the Los Angeles waterfront strike in the same year, he said, he collected more than $140,000 from employers for the purpose. He testified he had made repeated efforts to have it ended.

Pressed by Senator LaFollette for his reasons for rewarding the policemen, already paid by the city, Wolfe said members of his association had suggested the officers be reimbursed for the meals they were forced to buy while on strike duty.

ENVOY TO CANADA

The senate today confirmed the nomination of James H. R. Cromwell, (above) husband of the wealthy Doris Duke, to be minister to Canada. Cromwell, economist, world traveler, and author, will succeed Daniel Roper, formerly secretary of commerce, as minister to Canada.

Subcommittee in Favor of Murphy For High Court

Given Unanimous O. K. After His Voluntary Appearance

Washington—(P)—The senate speedily approved today the nomination of Charles Edison as secretary of the navy after Senator Borah (R-Idaho) had protested against legislation recommended by Edison to give President Roosevelt certain broad peacetime emergency powers.

Edison, already holding the position of secretary under a recess appointment, recently advocated that congress enact a law giving the president power, in an emergency, to confiscate naval factories and supplies.

After his recommendation created a furor at the capitol, he declared it to be merely a preparedness measure and denied any intention to bring about unwarranted increases in the presidential authority.

Washington—(P)—A senate judiciary subcommittee today recommended confirmation of Attorney General Frank Murphy as an associate justice of the supreme court, after Murphy had voluntarily appeared before the group.

The unanimous action came after Murphy had assured senators that he opposed use of force "by either side" in labor disputes and that he believed the supreme court has the power and duty to invalidate acts of congress when they contravene the federal constitution.

Sensors Burke (D-Neb.), chairman of the subcommittee, Austin (R-Vt.), Connally (D-Texas) and King (D-Utah) all fired questions at Murphy about his views of the constitution and duties of a supreme court justice.

The nomination now must be considered by the full judiciary committee, probably Monday, and then sent to the senate for expected confirmation. Murphy's appointment as attorney general a year ago was confirmed 78 to 7.

No Formal Hearings
Senators McCarran (D-Nev.) and Borah (R-Idaho), subcommittee members, said they approved the nomination. The meeting was called by Burke after receipt of some letters of protest, which the chairman said made it necessary to decide whether formal hearings on Murphy's qualifications for the position should be held.

The committee removed that possibility, however, when it voted in favor of confirmation.

Murphy, 46, would succeed the late Justice Pierce Butler as a member of the supreme court. He has served as attorney general since last January.

Judiciary subcommittees already had approved President Roosevelt's nominations of Robert H. Jackson, now solicitor general, to succeed Murphy as attorney general, and Francis Biddle, now a third federal circuit court judge, to be solicitor general.

Nazis Report French In Surprise Attack

Berlin—(P)—A French company in a surprise attack was reported by the German official news agency today to have succeeded in breaking the German line on Kreuzberg, east of Forbach, only to be driven back later by a Nazi counter-attack.

The sector is on the western front a short distance from Saarbruecken. The officials news agency, DNB, said the French left dead and wounded when they were driven back by local German outposts after a short-lived triumph.

It also said that a few French prisoners were taken by surprise German flank attack.

The high command in its daily communiqué reported that two allied planes, which DNB identified as French, were brought down in air battles yesterday with the loss of one German plane.

Russian Officers Reported Called Back From Finland to Face Trial in Special Courts

Copenhagen—(P)—Reports were received here today that more than 100 Soviet Russian officers had been called back from the Finnish front, some of them to face trial before special courts.

The reports, which reached Norwegian and Finnish quarters from numerous sources, said that the officers would be tried before courts consisting of people's commissars.

The Russian commissariat dealing with supplies was reported especially to be under a penetrating inquiry, which, it was said, already has led to executions. Immediate verification of the reports was lacking.

Observers here were inclined to link the reports with the Moscow announcement that Mikhail M. Kaganovich had been relieved as commissar for the Soviet aviation industry and "transferred to another post."

Kaganovich held a key post, and one of his duties was to supply materials to plane factories.

Report Reorganization
There were persistent reports that the Russian forces were being reorganized because of weaknesses shown up in the invasion of Finland. These reports reached not only Helsinki but several other Scandinavian capitals.

Advices from Finland said the Finns today were heavily attacking a well-equipped red army division which they surrounded south of Lake Kianta on the eastern front.

The division was described as the third and last of an entire Soviet Russian army corps, the two others, of 15,000 or more men each, having been shattered previously in the same general vicinity, with thousands reported slain.

Finns say that this army corps, the Ninth, has been taking a terrific beating for the last two weeks in its attempt to sever the country at the narrow "waistline."

Following destruction of the 163rd division, which the Finns described as a rout, they said the 44th division was decimated and its remnants were driven back across the border.

Hold 30-mile Strip
The Finns reported they now hold a 30-mile frontier strip east of Lake Kianta, free of enemy troops for the first time since the war began Nov. 30.

They said the last division of the army corps was trapped at Kukkamäki, south of the scene of the other victories at Suomussalmi.

A Finnish communiqué also announced that a Russian battalion Turn to page 14 col. 7

Pre-Trial Confab In Slaying Case

Hope to Speed Devroy Murder Hearing at Green Bay

Green Bay—(P)—A pre-trial conference, the first here in a criminal case, was held yesterday in the hope of speeding circuit court trial procedure for Joseph Devroy, charged with slaying his mother-in-law, Mrs. Emily Kaiser.

Devroy's trial is set for Jan. 23. Thirteen jurors will hear the case, including one alternate.

Attorneys for Devroy and the state agreed that the information filed by District Attorney Cletus Chadek would not be attacked on technical grounds and that Devroy's plea would be innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Circuit Court Judge Henry Graess said he would not limit the number of attorneys called to support or attack Devroy's defense, but the state and defense indicated they would not present more than three each.

The pre-trial procedure, prescribed by the supreme court for lower courts, became effective Jan. 1. It directs attorneys and prosecutors to confer, settle the case, if possible, and if not, limit the issues to those on which no agreement can be reached.

Devroy also faces a charge of murdering his wife.

Illinois Governor Will Seek Bioff's Extradition to Serve Jail Term Imposed in 1922

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Governor Henry Horner announced today he would sign a requisition for the extradition from California of William Bioff, west coast motion picture labor leader.

The requisition, which Governor Horner said he would sign later today, would be a formal request that Governor Culbert L. Olson of California issue an extradition warrant for Bioff's return to Chicago to serve six months jail term for pandering imposed in 1922.

Governor Horner characterized the Bioff case as "unique and unusual" and said in a statement "I am of the opinion that the unexplained and apparently inexplicable delay or negligence of the law enforcing officials should not exempt the defendant from paying the penalty of the law for his crime."

"When the requisition I shall issue today to the governor of Cali-

Notorious Robber Takes Own Life in California Hotel

Couldn't 'Come Back' Because of Reputation as Former Convict

San Francisco—(P)—The notorious career of Mail Robber Roy Gardner, who boasted that he could escape from the law, was closed in suicide today because he could not escape from the stigma of "ex-convict" after nearly 20 years in prison.

Fashioning a lethal chamber in the bathroom of his hotel quarters here, Gardner, about 56, breathed deadly fumes which he created last night with chemicals, and died quickly, "old and tired" but bearing "no malice toward any human being."

"Since his release" from Leavenworth federal penitentiary in June, 1934, he had tried to rebuild his life in the world outside bars, trying the motion picture business, writing and lecturing.

"All men who have to serve more than five years in prison are doomed," he said in a note, "but they don't realize it. They kid themselves into the belief that they can 'come back' but they can't. There is a barrier between the ex-convict and society that cannot be leveled."

Gardner, whose final capture in Arizona came about because he refused to shoot at his captor—he never fired a shot in a long series of robberies—was solicitous to the last.

On the door of the bathroom, he posted a note which said "do not open this door. Poison gas. Call the police."

Gardner's note, addressed to newsmen, asked that they "let me down as light as possible," because "I have always played ball with you all the way, and now you should pitch me a slow one and let me hit it."

Two bodies were found against a slate wall a quarter of a mile from the 620-foot shaft but there was no definite indication of the fate of the others.

Make Good Progress
More than 2,000 persons gathered about the mouth of the mine greeted news of company Vice President R. E. Salvati that rescue crews were progressing "in good shape" and that "the mine is not torn up at all as one would think from an explosion of this kind."

However, workers said they were handicapped considerably by dead air and had to build brattices as they went along to protect themselves from the shifting air.

At 3 o'clock reported penetration through rock and debris about half way to the trapped men.

State mine department officials said the ventilating system had to be rebuilt as the crews moved ahead. The main ventilating system continued in operation but H. G. Houtz, state chief engineer, reported chances "slim" that the trapped men had been able to build barricades and conserve what pure air remained in the affected areas.

Occurring at 2:20 p. m. yesterday, the explosion at the mine was more than an hour before serious work of the accident was known above ground. For-

Former Price County Assemblyman Is Dead

Madison—(P)—Felix A. Kremer, 67, of Phillips, former Price county assemblyman, died at Wisconsin General hospital today.

Kremer was admitted to the hospital Sunday. He was suffering from a chronic ailment, the hospital reported. Elected as a Progressive, Kremer served as assemblyman at the 1937 legislative session. He was formerly district attorney and municipal judge of Price county.

Reported Approaching '65 or '75' Trapped Men

BLAST RESULT

Anxious Relatives Wait at Mouth of West Virginia Mine

Bartley, W. Va.—(P)—As rescue crews struggled through debris and gas toward 87 miners entombed by an explosion that killed at least four, a mine official expressed hope today that "50 or 60" would be found alive.

The crews, which have pushed almost a mile and a quarter through the blast-wrecked corridor in the Bartley No. 1 mine of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corporation, were reported within a few hundred feet of the men trapped by the blast yesterday.

G. J. Stollings, general manager of the corporation, reported at noon the crews might reach the men within six hours and added:

"We're very hopeful that possibly 50 or 60 could be found alive. Veterans miners in this squalid southern West Virginia coal village shook their heads, however, and expressed fear all had perished. George Pile, company auditor said the "chances are heavily against finding any of the men alive."

Bartley, W. Va.—(P)—Rescue crews found a fourth body today in the blast-torn Bartley No. 1 mine of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corporation and struggled through debris to within a few hundred feet of "65 or 75" of the remaining 87 trapped men.

Company officials clung to the hope that some survived yesterday's explosion, but experienced miners in this squalid southern West Virginia community shook their heads and expressed fear all perished.

The known dead:
Roy Evans, 41, motorman, married, four children.
Charles Hedrick, 42, Negro, married, four children.
Roy Hyatt, 32, motorman, married, four children.

One man still unidentified.
The body of Evans was discovered as rescue workers advanced to within 1,200 feet of the estimated center of the explosion which tore through three sections of the pit.

Nearing Victims
R. E. Salvati, vice president of the company in charge of rescue work, issued this statement at 8 a. m.:

"If we have luck, we should reach 65 or 75 men in a matter of hours. He said those men were believed to be in the third and fourth left entries. Crews have penetrated more than 6,000 feet since they started, Salvati added.

Wives and children of the trapped miners and hundreds of curious who gathered near the mine stood dumbly in a cold, sleety rain waiting for word from the eight rescue crews.

Rescue Worker Carl J. Dickenson, emerging from the workings at 3 a. m., declared:

"It looks bad. I don't think there is much chance."

"Two bodies were found against a slate wall a quarter of a mile from the 620-foot shaft but there was no definite indication of the fate of the others."

More than 2,000 persons gathered about the mouth of the mine greeted news of company Vice President R. E. Salvati that rescue crews were progressing "in good shape" and that "the mine is not torn up at all as one would think from an explosion of this kind."

Infant Girl Stricken After Part of Peanut Is Lodged in Her Lung

Black Creek—Barbara, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wussow, route 1, Black Creek, is in critical condition at a Madison hospital from pneumonia which started after a portion of a peanut became lodged in her lung.

The child choked on a peanut New Year's day and toward the end of that week, became ill. She was taken to a Green Bay hospital. The attending physician said today that X-rays taken then showed part of the peanut had become fastened in a bronchial tube.

The infant was taken to Madison on Tuesday of this week.

Suppression and Misuse of Facts Charged by Hull

Secretary of State Defends Program of Reciprocal Trade Pacts

Washington—(AP)—Ascribing "flagrant and unscrupulous suppression and misuse of material facts" to critics of the reciprocal trade program, Secretary Hull declared today that it had expanded markets for American farm and manufactured products.

He appealed to the house ways and means committee to renew the expiring trade agreements act in order to aid in worldwide economic readjustment after the European war.

"The choice before us," Hull said, "is whether we shall lead the way toward the slough of despair and ruin for ourselves and for others, or toward the heights of economic progress, sustained prosperity and enduring peace for our nation and for the world."

Method Democratic
He took issue with members of congress who are demanding senate ratification of each agreement, by asserting that the method followed in state department negotiations "is democratic in every sense of the word."

Hull's statement opened the congressional fight over the reciprocal trade issue.
In concluding the pacts, Hull said, American tariffs have been lowered only where they are "unduly burdensome" and where other countries have agreed to accord better treatment to United States exports in return for tariff adjustments.

"No evidence of serious injury has been added in the assertions and allegations which have been put forward by the opponents and critics of the trade agreements program," he said.

In some cases, he asserted, claims of injury had been made before the agreements were concluded and their terms known; in others, protests had been made when the duty actually had not been reduced or when the commodity had been on the free list under the Hawley-Smoot act.

"In my entire experience," Hull declared, "I do not recall a more flagrant and unscrupulous suppression and misuse of material facts on an issue which is of vital significance to every citizen, every home, every farm and every factory."

"Some light is shed on the present situation by the fact that many of those who are now insisting upon advising American agriculture in opposition to the reciprocal trade policy, which has demonstrated its benefits to agriculture, were among the identical persons who advised the farmers in 1930 that the Smoot-Hawley act would bring them permanent prosperity, whereas under such advice the farmers of this nation were plunged straight into unprecedented bankruptcy."

"I dare say that the farmers will think twice before accepting a second time such reckless advice, supported by still more reckless statistics."

Figures Compared
At the end of 1932, Hull said, "after two and one-half years of Hawley-Smoot tariff embargoes" farm cash income had dropped from $11,200,000,000 to $4,700,000,000. By 1938, he said, it had risen to $7,600,000,000, excluding benefit payments.

"The most reckless claims have been made in connection with the cattle and the dairy industries," he said. "The income of the cattle industry, which had fallen from $1,495,000,000 in 1929 to $621,000,000 in 1932, rose to $1,144,000,000 in 1938. The income of the dairy industry, which had fallen from $1,844,000,000 in 1929 to $991,000,000 in 1932, rose to $1,398,000,000 in 1938. Does this indicate ruin?"

U. S. Acquires Broad Forest Land Holdings

Washington—(AP)—The federal government has acquired title to forest lands equal to combined areas of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont during the last 25 years, the national forest reservation commission reported today.
Purchases, authorized by the Weeks law of 1911, total 16,369,751 acres and cost $61,260,435. They brought federal forestry holdings in the United States, Alaska and Puerto Rico to 175,843,405 acres. Among the states in which the purchases were made since 1911, and the acreage, were: Michigan, 1,792,267; Minnesota, 1,337,428; Wisconsin, 1,335,373.

Most of Peace Sentiment Is Based on Plain Hope With No Concrete Reason to Back It Up

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—The idea that Europe may get peace by spring keeps cropping up with such persistence both at home and abroad that one can't afford not to examine it, though none of its reincarnations thus far has disclosed the basis of the belief.

Anyway, basis or no basis, it's a grand thought and one can at least say of it what the stage magician says of his act: "It's a good trick if I do it—and it's a good trick if I don't."

Certainly if everybody thinks in terms of peace, war's end will be hastened. Moreover, it seems to me personally that while an early peace isn't probable as conditions now are yet it is possible.

I think we can go this far with wishful thinkers: peace is not impossible for the spring. I will develop the point a bit later, but

Road Heads Seek Law to Prohibit Fund Diversion

Dem and Constitutional Amendment to Outlaw State Practice

Milwaukee—(AP)—A resolution demanding a constitutional amendment to prohibit diversion of state highway funds was adopted yesterday by the Wisconsin County Highway Committee Members' association and the County Highway Commissioners' association.

The resolution was approved after an address by A. J. Thelen, Madison, who sharply criticized both the practice of diversion and the power of the state emergency board to cut appropriations.

Thelen, secretary of the Wisconsin County Road Board, termed the emergency board's trimming of power "one of the most vicious of present trends in legislation."

"It allows the legislature to pass 'grave train' or so-called good will legislation, and then pass on to some one else the responsibility of financing such vote getting legislation," he asserted.

Thelen declared that highway diversion "has been on the increase because it is the loophole by which the legislature can make good fellows of themselves by raising pensions, etc., and then neglect to raise revenues to finance their increased appropriations."

Thelen said the state never would have an economy-minded legislature until highway funds were segregated.

"When a legislature knows it must finance all of its grants, gifts and appropriations, it will do just as every local unit of government is doing—economize. It will never happen when there is a grab bag of $12,000,000 at their disposal every biennium," he added.

Delay in Building Courthouse Might Up Cost—Bradford

Present Structure 'Totally Inadequate,' He Says In Talk

Delay in the building of a new Outagamie county courthouse may mean greater expense of construction because of higher interest rates and building costs, Attorney Alfred S. Bradford said in a talk before the Appleton Kiwanis club at noon yesterday in the Conway hotel.

Bradford, a member of the courthouse building committee, said that the county could not build at a more advantageous time than the present because of extremely low interest rates and comparatively reasonable building costs.

He termed the present building "totally inadequate because the number of agencies that have offices in it need far more room than is available and declared that 'you can keep on repairing the courthouse forever, but it still will not be adequate.'"

The debate in the county board is not over whether the county needs a new courthouse, which is apparent, but whether it should be done now or later, Bradford said.

He remarked that in contemplating a new building, he is "not talking about a marble monument to the county, but a plain working place for county officers and the public."

It is difficult to persuade Outagamie county residents to visit the courthouse for the purpose of matching its accommodations with the needs, Bradford said, and many of those who do inspect the building fail to understand its shortcomings.

Facilities A "Disgrace"
He declared that facilities in the "county court alone are a disgrace." Through this court go estates, insane cases, juvenile delinquency cases, mothers and blind pensions, the attorney said, pointing out that "all these people and Judge Heinemann must discuss their business in a single room."

The same is true of the municipal and circuit courts, where there is insufficient room for privacy for jurors, judges, and lawyers.

County records, particularly, are in a disorganized state because of the lack of sufficient filing facilities, Bradford said. Records which can't be stored in their respective offices are placed in the courthouse and jail basements.

He said the county treasurer's office is far too small to meet needs and that "every time it rains, water comes through the west wall and ceiling onto the records."

College Photographic Exhibit Has Architecture as Subject

An exhibit of photographs compiled by Professor Raymond Hitchcock of Providence, R. I., which traces the development of Rhode Island architecture from the 17th century to the present day, is on display in the Lawrence college library.

Examples of commercial and industrial art during this period also are shown.

Both interior and exterior views of the great mansions of Newport and of one built during the colonial period in Providence are illustrated. One of the features is a study of a Jewish synagogue designed by the English architect, Peter Harrison, who was brought over from England to design and build Newport's fortifications when that city was considered the greatest port on the coast.

Examples of the Gothic revival which began in 1810 and reached its peak in the so-called "Grant style" after 1815 are shown. Studies of the great Newport "palaces," built by America's rich during the 1880-1920 period, provide one of the most interesting features of the exhibit.

TAKES INVENTORY
The sheriff's committee yesterday took an inventory at the county jail report will be made to the county board at its next meeting.

Budget Study Is Paramount Issue Before Congress

Senate Takes Step Toward Restoration of Control Of Purse Strings

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The senate has taken the first step toward a restoration of the independence of congress to its legislative function of controlling the purse strings of the government.

Will the house back up the senate? This question, which started when Senator Pat Harrison asked for the appointment of a bi-partisan committee of 24 from both houses of congress to study the president's budget, has become paramount in the present session.

It marks the recognition by congress of a widespread public sentiment, namely that spending of public funds should be attended by far more scrutiny than has been given it in the last seven years, and that, while the executive may recommend, it is really the duty of the legislative branch of the government to decide what shall or shall not be expended.

The time for coordination of national expenditures by a systematic survey of the budget as a whole has arrived, in the judgment of most members of congress. They wish to decide what the whole budget shall be like and not merely confine themselves to particular items as in the past.

In a sense, the biggest and most salutary development in the present situation is the fact that the previous congress set a debt limit of $45,000,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt made some sharp cuts in items which he knew would displease certain members of congress, and, as Senator Adams of Colorado, Democrat, said, there must have been "a twinkle in the president's eyes" as he submitted the budget to congress.

Debt Limit If congress attempts to raise some of the items, it will be automatically increasing the debt limit. If it wants to restore the cuts, congress must penetrate the national defense section of the budget. What really has happened is that, for the first time since budgeting started about 20 years ago, congress has been compelled to look at the whole budget very much as a parliamentary government does abroad. In such circumstances, the leadership has to determine what the budget must include.

It does look as if national defense recommendations will suffer most, notwithstanding the war, but, if they do not, then some of the big subsidies will be curtailed, and, this being an election year, the politicians on Capitol Hill may do the suffering.

Senator Pat Harrison sensed the situation—the strategy that the executive was adopting toward congress—and immediately asked for the joint house-senate committee to make the general study. Leaders in the house are represented as opposed to the appointment of a special committee as likely to delay consideration of appropriations. But unquestionably the Republicans in the house will support the measure, and, if they vote solidly for it, there might be another 60 votes from the Democratic side, especially from among the conservatives. Even though predictions of defeat have been general, it seems incredible that the house would publicly refuse to agree to a joint committee study of the whole spending problem and the budget, especially when there is a debt limit to face.

No Opposition From a tactical standpoint, the administration has been publicly inclined to go along with the request for a budget study by a joint senate-house committee, and certainly no opposition was interposed by the administration in the senate, where the proposal carried by an overwhelming vote. If the administration were to use its influence to have the measure defeated in the house, this would be apparent in the voting. The Republicans would then certainly make political capital out of the refusal by administration leaders to give the budget the new form of study that is being sought by the senate. Indeed, it is not unlikely that, in the event of house defeat, the senate might conduct its inquiry anyway, though such a disagreement would undoubtedly mean a longer session and delay in an election year, when the administration is anxious to see an early adjournment of congress.

But after the study, what? The chances are that the president will win his point with respect to holding the budget to $45,000,000,000, but he is likely to find that the congress can play at the same sort of strategy and begin making cuts in projects which various New Deal agencies would not like to see diminished. Certainly it appears that the debt limit will not be exceeded, for neither political party wants to take responsibility for the increase beyond the 45 billions. The next president would then have to face the question of further deficits or a balanced budget, and it would not be surprising if the next president shifted complete responsibility for balancing the budget to the congress, where it really belongs. The budget can always be balanced whenever congress decides to do so. The executive has no power to appropriate public funds—only to disburse what congress has ordered. It is a simple lesson in government, yet it has not been taken to heart till this session of congress.

Pegler Decries Abandonment Of Football at U. of Chicago

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—We all baby-havin', 'tater-hoin', God-fearin' Americans are not a-goin' to take kindly to the abandonment of intercollegiate football by the University of Chicago.

If there is anything a little more American than anything else it is intercollegiate football, and this decision to haul down the grand old flag, so to speak, looks like the work of the dirty Communists. I would not be surprised to learn that it was inspired and engineered by the same cunning plotters who seduced that illustrious, stall-walking, intellectual alumnus of the midway, Mr. James Vincent Sheehan, to sign a manifesto exculpating Moscow, just before Josef Stalin took a full swing at Finland and missed.

In speaking of Finland the adjectives "brave," "poor" and "glorious" are to be taken for granted. I call Finland Finland for short only to save tolls. The trouble with the University of Chicago is that the students have gone in too much for high-pressure thinking. I once sat in on an evening of mental scrimmage there under the direction of head coach Robert M. Hutchins, the grand old man of rationation, and it was easy to see that this was a killing game for young and immature minds. They would read of an old thought-book, and the grand old man, or wizard mentor, of rationation would call on one member of the squad to tell what this thought meant.

That was not so bad. That was just straight-away, longshoreman's thinking. But when they would ask the student to tell what it meant side-business, yet cherish their medals and brittle old citations from the commanding officer. Much that passes for college thinking in reality is nothing but worrying, and the graduates of the schools which produce good football teams are quite as happy and as useful for all practical and spiritual

The thinking squad staggered out of the room groggy, and it is no wonder that so many letter-men and women of the thinking squad left U. of C. with cerebral trick-knees and thought with a decided limp in after life, especially on rainy days.

Some veterans of intercollegiate football write an annual magazine piece, usually entitled "Was it worth it?" in which they take occasion to re-ind a forgetful public that they really were all-Americans long ago. They then dig up all the old cases of Charley horses, twi-fracture and cauliflowered cerebellum that have occurred in football in a quarter-century and cry "no" a thousand times.

Just The Same They Keep All The Clippings They were young and dumb at the time, and they thought the glory, the varsity letters and clippings which they accumulated were worth the risks and hurts. Now, however, they are wiser, and so they decry football, but they nevertheless preserve as priceless trophies to be handed on to their sons, if any, the dusty helmets and cracked old football shoes which they wore on the varsity and their football letters and scrapbooks. They do this in the identical spirit of those retired brigadiers whose only distinction was earned in war and who delighted in war but now decry it as a beastly purposes as the furrowed and thought-scarred veterans who are emerging from the University of Chicago. The European schools have always emphasized thinking, and the result is told not in progress or happiness but in the war news today.

In this country the University of Chicago and the City of New York are proud of their indifference to football and noted in equal parts for their feebleness at the game and the number of perambulating headaches which they have inflicted on the nation.

No Communist ever made all-America or even earned a varsity letter, and the memoirs of the college Communists show that they are misfits and much disliked in school and plainly suggest that the males were jealous of the campus hero and the females jealous of the cutie with the swell pair of legs who strutted with the band between halves.

Institutions for Insane Have More Inmates Than Beds

Number of State Public Charges Exceeds Capacity of Buildings

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—At the end of 1939 state and county institutions in Wisconsin were caring for nearly 500 more public charges than the rated bed capacity of those institutions, a population report compiled by the state department of public welfare reveals.

Greatest overload was shown in state and county institutions for the mentally diseased, where there were almost 400 more patients than beds, according to the rated capacity of the institutions.

Generally the county asylums had fewer patients than they were capable of handling, while the state hospitals, and particularly the homes for the feeble-minded, were heavily overcrowded, the figures emphasized.

Latest population report shows a total inmate load of 14,785 in 5 state and 37 county institutions for the insane, of which almost 8,000 were in county asylums.

The total has increased considerably in recent years, state records disclose, although state experts warn that any conclusions on the growth of mental diseases must be qualified by the recognition that medical attention today is better diffused, reporting facilities are better, and commitments more regular in those cases where mental deficiency is discovered.

In 1939 there were only 11,903 patients in state and county mental institutions, in 1929 only 10,008, while ten years earlier, in 1919, there were only 8,157, about 40 per cent less than today's total.

CO-STAR IN 'ALLEGHENY UPRISING'

The heroic story of an intrepid band of frontiersmen who struggled valiantly against the onslaughts of treacherous Indian tribes, is contained in "Allegheny Uprising," starring Claire Trevor and John Wayne starting at the Appleton Theatre Saturday. The story has to do with the revolt of Pennsylvania colonists against His Majesty's Army—a vital event in American history that predated the Revolution. John Wayne is cast as James Smith, leader of the "rebels" while Claire Trevor is seen as a fiery lass whose love for the chieftain causes her to share with him the dangers of the insurrection. Other noted players in the cast are George Sanders, Brian Donlevy, Wilfrid Lawson, Robert Barrat, and Eddie Quillan.

The second feature is "Nurse Edith Cavell," starring Anna Neagle as the famous World War nurse who suffered the death penalty for devoting herself to the patriotic endeavor of aiding war fugitives escape the same fate she eventually received.

$8,785 Is Paid to County Treasurer

Early Payments May Avert Need for Loans, Stadler Asserts

Waupaca—About $8,785 has been paid to County Treasurer L. J. Stadler on county taxes. The town of Scandinavia paid $1,000; city of Waupaca, $5,000; town of Dayton, $1,000; village of Big Falls, $86.29, and the town of Royalton, $1,196.93. These amounts were of great help to the treasury as there were no funds with which to begin the new year.

In order to finish out the year of 1939 the county was forced to borrow $10,000, the first loan since 1935. Shortage in funds at this time is due to delay in payments of accounts due from local districts and the state. If more town and village treasurers could pay a small amount now on their county charges, no further loans would be necessary, Mr. Stadler said.

Total cash received by the treasurer during 1939 totals $1,218,233.72; disbursements, $1,212,422.61, making a gain of receipts over disbursements of $5,811.11.

Inheritance taxes collected during the year amounted to $9,519.31; the largest amount received from any one estate was $1,496.74.

Of the $9,519.31 collected, $1,391.91 is for emergency relief, which is turned over to the state; $8,127.40 is

SHOULD BE MORE THOROUGH

Louisville, Ky.—(AP)—Prospective victims aren't making things any easier for Louisville footpads. Carl Duggins, 28, lost $150 to an assailant but saved $35 by putting the money in his mouth. The day before, a woman reported she lost 45 cents to a purse-snatcher but kept $12 which she had hidden in a shoe.

$21.24 Claim Paid For Sewer Stub Is Allowed by Aldermen

A claim filed by Mrs. James Tracy, 534 E. South River street, for reimbursement of $21.24 in special assessment for sewer service, was allowed by the street and bridge committee yesterday.

The assessment was made for a sewer stub when South River street was paved but because the street was cut down, the sewer was too high to be used and another connection was made on S. Lave street. The committee voted to rebate five cents per foot to property owners on John street from Weimar street to the city limits for oiling.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car, so it takes the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Rapid Play May Harry Opponents

BY ELY CULBERTSON

It is better to play the cards well and quickly than well and slowly. The reason for this is not that you have time enough to play more; you are thereby encouraged to make hands, but also that the opponents' mistakes. There is nothing in the least unethical about this. The opponents have the right at any time to deliberate and slow up the play. If they choose not to do so, it is their own lookout if they make mistakes.

It should not be gathered from the foregoing, however, that the whole art of playing bridge well consists in playing quickly. This seems to have been the opinion of the East player in today's hand, judging from the horrible misplays he made.

South, dealer.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 club Pass 1 heart Pass
2 diamonds Pass 3 clubs Pass
3 no trump Pass Pass Pass

The final contract was hardly a good one, since it could not be made against even an approximately accurate defense, whereas five clubs was almost a laydown.

West opened the six of spades. South knew it could do no good to knock out the ace of clubs, since one opponent must have started with at least five spades. His best chance for his contract lay in a 3-3 break in the heart suit. He therefore cashed the king, the ace, and the queen, and was disappointed when East discarded on this last trick. But East very unwisely chose to discard from his "worthless" diamond suit.

Declarer had one more hope. If the discard had been from the four card diamond length, he could run the diamonds, but this still would give him only eight tricks. One desperate expedient remained. If East had started with the ace of clubs, he might be caught napping. The ten of clubs was therefore led from dummy to make it appear to East that a finesse was contemplated. Still under the impression that speed was the watchword, East immediately dropped a low club and declarer romped home with nine tricks.

Of course, East should have known that the contract was doomed to defeat. The rule of eleven should have told him that South had only one spade higher than the six and that after the first trick the spade suit was solid. The abandonment of the heart suit should have told him also that his partner had an established heart. Had he taken the ace of clubs he could have been sure of at least three more spades and his partner's heart winner.

PROPRIETIES

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it wrong for a girl to drive a distance in a car with a young man, then go to a dance there that evening and drive back home late that same night? My daughter and I have had a disagreement about this.

Answer: This is one of those modern situations that cannot be answered definitely. For Mary Modern it would be entirely proper to drive with David Downton, but of questionable propriety to drive with Miguel Menece, and there would be no question at all about the propriety of letting Fanny Foolish go out with Miguel at any time or anywhere. The answer to every question like this comes down to the consideration of personal character, temperament and worldly training. Only one who knows every angle to be considered can possibly give an intelligent opinion.

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think it is in questionable taste for a girl to give several pictures of herself at the same time to different boys who have asked for her pictures? Some one told me you wrote one time as though you didn't think much of such a practice? What is wrong with it?

Answer: I have, it is true, answered critically about writing sentimental autographs on pictures giv-

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

That great English writer, Pope, once stated that the best method for complimenting, consists of praising a person for that in which he desires to excel rather than for his actual routine tasks well done. A girl who secretly longs to be a movie star will value a compliment along that line better than one about her neat manicuring of a customer's nails, or her skillful waiting upon tables.

Case P-152: Judy, aged 51, is our only daughter.

Last winter her mother bought her a snow suit, with hat to match, but the latter was a bit small. Judy complained that it hurt her head.

Mrs. Crane ripped open a seam and inserted a gore. She did a little more remodeling, which not only made the hat larger, but improved its appearance.

Then she called Judy for a fitting. Maybe Judy was irritated at being called away from her play, or maybe her dislike of the hat carried over from the time when it was smaller and hurt her head. At any rate, she showed no fondness for the hat.

"I don't want to wear this hat," she spoke very positively. "It's an old hat and doesn't look pretty."

During a lull in their discussion, I entered the conversation. "Mamma, you've done a good job re-making that hat, but I think you ought not let Judy wear it."

"Why not?" inquired Mrs. Crane. "I'm afraid it makes her look too old," I added, while Judy perked up at this intimation of greater age. "It is larger and makes her look like a 6-year-old, at least."

"But I want to look old," Judy spoke gleefully, and she took an entirely different attitude regarding her hat.

Diagnosis: Time and again I have pointed out the fact that children crave to be adults. They want to be free from the serfdom or slavery which they feel attaches to childhood. They aspire to get away from their pigmy size and become the equals of those "giants" who surround them.

We parents and teachers, for instance, may tower far above their heads. We may be twice as tall and 3 or 4 times as heavy as our young children.

To appreciate their viewpoint, therefore, we should try to imagine ourselves surrounded by men and women who were 10 or 12 feet tall and who weighed 400 to 600 pounds.

Suppose our plates were twice as large and the forks and knives were doubled in length. Suppose cups and glasses were doubled in size so that we could barely get a grip on the water glass.

Suppose the dining table came up to our chins while we stood beside it. Suppose our chairs were so high it became an athletic feat to get into them. Suppose the pictures on the walls were 10 feet above the floor, so we had to crane our necks to look at them.

Suppose all objects, like pianos, were almost as mysterious as mountain ranges for we were not able to see what was on top. Suppose our beds were 8 feet wide, 12 feet long and so high from the floor that we had to lean over the side in clambering in, much as a man leans over a horse's back in trying to get astride.

Children like stories about giants and believe them, for they are among real giants. They enjoy tales of fairies and elves, because they identify themselves with these tiny folk, and delight in the great power of the fairies.

To compliment a child, therefore, be sure you remember that he wants to be big. Tallness, big muscles or even the possession of his father's knife or mother's discarded purse—these are goals of a child's longing and aspiration.

Answer: Ever since the days of Jane Austen, the rules about stairways have been rather confusing because of the clash between modern and helplessness. On a "dangerous" stairway (meaning one down which the lady was likely to trip) the gentleman took his position below her so as to catch her should she fall. But on a broad tread stairway he was expected to go first up the stairs and follow her down so he wouldn't catch a glimpse of her ankles. Today he follows her everywhere unless the stairs are likely to collapse, in which case it would certainly be more courteous to precede her going down and follow her going up.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. ## Girl Privileged to Share in Purchase of Home Furnishings

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Who, in your opinion, is right in the following discussion between a mother and her daughter? Mother says: "Even though an engaged couple are earning about the same wages, it is the man's responsibility to buy all of the furniture for their future home." Daughter says: "This arrangement was perfectly all right when girls were not in business, or, if they were, they received only a fraction of the amount of their fiancé's salary. But at present when men and women are earning an equal amount it doesn't seem fair for the man to buy all the furniture and the girl only provide the linens and a few inexpensive articles. She thinks it would be fair if they both saved an equal amount each week and when they had enough to buy all the things they needed for their home out of this savings account. Daughter says also that any money each may have saved prior to their engagement should be kept as his or her private account after marriage." Which of us is right?

CONSTANT READER.

Answer: I think you are. Your mother's contention that the new home rests on the theory that the man should contribute to it but the monogrammed towels and embroidered dish towels in her hope chest. Also, it assumes that the man will shoulder all of the responsibility for the support of the establishment.

That was the old way in which a young couple set up housekeeping, and maybe it was a good way for the men to bring home the bacon and the wife to stay in the kitchen and fry it. But those ways have gone with the wind, and there is no use in trying to apply them to modern conditions.

Today when a girl earns just as much money as her fiancé does, it is only fair and just that they should go fifty-fifty on the expense of going to housekeeping.

Somewhere, in America, it has always been the custom for a young man to get an engaged couple to discuss financial matters before they were married and come to some definite agreement on the money question. We have acted as if people could live on kisses and as if there would be no bills to trouble them after marriage.

Men have assured their starchy little fiancées that all that they had would be theirs, and so girls have trustingly gone into marriage without even knowing what their husbands made or what their ideas were on the allowance question; or whether they would have a joint checking account or the wives would have to get up in the night and go through their husbands' clothes to get the price of a new finger wave. The result has been tears and reproaches, and only too often divorce.

Now, when so many wives continue to be wage-earners after marriage, it is more than ever important that every couple should settle the money question before they marry instead of waiting to quarrel over it afterward. I get many letters from wives who say that their husbands gave up their jobs as soon as they found that they had wives who could support the family. Also many wives write that their husbands make them bring home their pay envelopes unopened, which they confiscate without even a "thank you," and that they get only a few cents out of the dollars they earn.

Of course, every couple will have to write their own financial ticket, but I think that inasmuch as the wife generally does the housework in addition to her labor outside of the home, that she should not pay as much of the living expenses as the husband, and that after both have made an equal contribution to a sinking fund to be held in both names that each should have his or her individual banking account.

I suggest this arrangement not because husbands and wives ordinarily want to cheat each other, or do not trust each other, but because very often a good husband has holes in his pockets, or a wife is unduly addicted to French millinery. Each should be protected against the other's weakness as far as it can be done, because every human being craves financial independence. No man wants to have let his adored Angelina that he has let a ne'er-do-well friend kick him for $5 again. Nor does any woman want to have to go to her beloved Percy for a handout every time she wants to buy something.

"Sensible" Marriage Safe, but Not Much Fun.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Do you think that a successful marriage can be built without this so-called love? I have been going with a girl for the last two-and-a-half years. She is everything a man could ask for so far as looks, intelligence, character and congeniality are concerned, and we are thinking of being married soon. But I hesitate because I don't know whether what I feel for her is enough to risk marriage on. I enjoy being with her more with anybody else, but when I have been away from her for a couple of weeks, as I often am, I am in no haste to see her. Sometimes I am in her room two or three days before I call her on the phone. About eight years ago I went with a girl and I thought of her all the time I was gone and couldn't get back fast enough to see her. When I did see her I always had a thrill and a fast heartbeat. But she is married now, and that's that, and the question is: What about this other girl who doesn't show any more emotion when she meets me than I do when I meet her?

Answer: Well, it doesn't seem to me that there would be much sweetness or flavor in that sort of icebox wedding cake, but if you have lost your taste for goosy sentiment you could count on its being wholesome and nutritious and not setting heavy on your stomach.

There is a lot to be said for picking out your mate with your head. That way you can make a judicious choice and you can see that you get what you want—a good cook, a congenial companion, somebody who will see that your dinner is a feast, your socks, darned, the budget balanced. But don't you think that you will want somebody you will hurry home to in the evening, somebody to baby you, somebody who will be foolishly fond of you, somebody who will just make the world go round for you?

A sensible marriage such as you are contemplating is a safe bet, but there isn't much fun in it.

BY ANGELO PATRI

It is the ambition of every American boy to drive a car of his own. When boys reach adolescence, and their very tendency is to be all but rebellious, they are caught in a difficulty never easy to overcome. The boy must learn to drive. That is the first step and easily taken. Now he wants to go out on his own. That is never easy to decide.

If the boy were the only one driving a car on the road there would be no questions. Unfortunately he would be one of hundreds, and careful driving must always include watching every other driver in sight. Even then, accidents happen.

Those accidents worry parents when the boys begin driving cars. People are hurt, often terribly hurt. Some are killed outright, far too many for our comfort. Damage suits come thick and fast in the wake of an accident, endangering the economic structure of the home itself. Parents are never at peace when their children are out in cars at night.

Then there is the matter of girls and boys going places at night. There is such a casual notion about sex association these days among certain young people, many of them of high school age, that fathers and mothers cannot help dreading these long rides to secluded roads, stops at roadhouses, dances and drinks to add joy to the occasion. These are the conditions of today. Like them or not, we must meet them. And we must train the boys and girls to meet them in healthy fashion.

It seems to me that the main question to be decided is the responsibility of the boy and girl under consideration. Age is not the first consideration. Some adolescents are mentally mature and spiritually strong enough to take care of themselves under almost any circumstances. Others are childish, unstable, irresponsible under all circumstances. It is this matter of maturity that should decide the use of the car. Those of proven responsibility can safely be trusted with it; those of proven instability cannot have it, though they are brothers.

Owning a car brings another set of problems. Boys delight in buying a secondhand car, polishing it up, tinkering with it, and using it as their very own. It gives them a feeling of power and importance second to no other experience of their age. How practical, how safe is this ownership?

If the boy is a responsible sort he drives a car and he can drive his own. Then comes the question of cost. The boy cannot earn much money. Some of the cost of the car should be saved for necessities, education, and the like. A car would eat it all and more. Extras fall on the family, and any accident is charged to the parents. Under such conditions it seems impractical to let a boy take his savings out of the bank and buy a car that must in the end be an added expense to the family.

It would seem better that ownership of a car be deferred until the young man is no longer dependent upon his family for financial support, no longer in need of the support of home and family. Mortgage his future and straining the family finances so that he may own and drive his own car is not good sense however you look for it.

Take the kind, wise, efficient way in teaching your little boy or girl to mind. Be guided by Angelo Patri's booklet, "Obedience." Send for it, enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Angelo Patri, care this newspaper, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

The Concord grape should be pruned any time during the next two months. A logical thing to do would be to cut back most of the old growth, leaving several new long canes to carry on growth for the coming season.

Stop for Arterials

Exactly. Well, please don't judge our police force or dad by the conduct of that ineptest of other day. I suppose you realize that the thing was more or less railroaded?

"I got it," Duncan said ruefully. "That's what was making me so angry."

"Sorry," Michael replied. "It couldn't be helped. We had to do it that way. By the way—there's one thing more; what exactly did Miss Lissey say to you that Sunday afternoon? She told us just a moment before she died that this thing would spoil your life for you; was she laboring under some mistaken idea?"

Duncan flushed again, as he always did when any mention was made of the tangled domestic affairs of his brother. "She said," he replied slowly, "that Devoe and Marie were carrying on scandalously. She knew they'd been slipping out on Edgar for months, and she was determined that something must be done. She thought, 'well, you're right, she thought I was in love with Marie too. She'd heard me threatening to kill Devoe, you see, and she didn't think that was just the way to go about it. She wanted Marie to be driven off the campus and if I didn't do it she was going to, and she was convinced that such action would bring me into a most unpleasant publicity and cause me to be disgraced. That's what she meant. It would have been rotten if she'd been right, but I have always hated Marie,' he finished tensely.

"Thanks," said Michael. "That's the way I doped it out." "And now it's my turn," said Tuck firmly. "Michael, do you remember what you said to Bunny about Duncan, days and days ago? When you told her that she mustn't even be decent to him? Not speak to him? What did you mean? Because obviously you have nothing against him now. Bunny understood you the other night when you took her to see him, but I didn't."

"Do you remember exactly what I said, Bunny?"

Bunny smiled. "Yes. You said I know as much about this case as you were absolutely sure of, I'd never speak to Duncan again."

"That's it. Don't you see, Tuck? Duncan, you know, was doing a bit of sleuthing on his own. If McBain thought we had joined forces, if Duncan were always hanging about here, he'd be in very grave danger. He was already in danger. That's why we had him arrested when we saw how desperate McBain was getting. He wasn't safe for a moment from our clever friend."

"But why didn't you tell us? We could have pretended—we didn't need to make him feel like a worm of the dust."

"You couldn't have pretended," Michael leaned over and kissed the tip of her nose; "you have a very nice face but it's as open as a clock. Don't look so bitter. That's a compliment. And Bunny's no actress. Anyway—you trusted McBain and he could see it. That was a safe charge. I'd have had to tell you to beware of him, and he'd have got it. Too big a risk. If I could keep you all hating each other it was much safer."

Duncan looked across at Michael. "I haven't said 'Thank you' properly," he said quietly. "I don't seem to be able to. Perhaps Edgar will when he gets better. He's my only brother. You know how I feel."

Romance

Something in his voice made Tuck bite her lip and swallow hard. Since that dreadful night the tears seemed very near the brimming point. Duncan went on.

"You know," he said more lightly, "I never could figure how you got untied and got at that . . . at McBain, just as you did. It sounded impossible to me. So last night I dropped a knife into my pocket, got one of the boys to tie me to a ring in the gym and twisted about trying to get loose. It took a long time, but I did it. I was tied only with heavy cord. Those broad bands of bandage

Fewer Cases of Disease in City During Last Year

Only 616 Cases of Communicable Illness; 1,294 in 1938

If communicable disease statistics for Appleton during 1939 may be used as a criterion, Appleton was twice as healthy last year as during 1938.

Last year, communicable diseases reported to the city health department numbered 616 compared to 1,294 the previous year, according to Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer. The reduction was represented in the measles column where only 28 cases were listed last year, compared to 1,101 during 1938.

Most prevalent in the city last year was chicken pox, a total of 336 cases against 113 in 1938. There were 241 cases of the disease among school children and 95 among adults and pre-school children.

Whooping cough showed an increase from 11 cases in 1938 to 120 cases in 1939, 53 among school children and 67 among pre-school children. The cases appeared among children from nine months to six years of age.

The occurrence of scarlet fever increased from 48 cases in 1938 to 61 cases last year, 48 among school children and 13 among adults and pre-school youngsters. Age limits were two years to 34 years.

Six cases of erysipelas were reported against none the year before while 18 cases of tuberculosis were reported, the same as in 1938. Forty-seven cases of mumps were reported compared to two cases the year before.

The city was free of diphtheria, infantile paralysis, typhoid and small pox during 1939.

Columbus' Crew Presents Problem

U. S. Making Arrangements to Send Germans Back to Reich

Washington—(AP)—State and labor department officials worked with German authorities today on an effort to arrange an early return home for the 575 officers and sailors of the scuttled German liner Columbus.

They decided on a plan which, essentially, would call for transportation of the 400 odd men who are of military age from Ellis Island to San Francisco, there to be carried across the Pacific on Japanese or other foreign vessels and thence to Germany via the trans-Siberian railroad.

To evade British attempts to capture the Germans at sea, the planners decided to scatter the men, a few to each vessel used. The North German Lloyd line, which owned the Columbus, would pay for transportation.

No specific time was set, but it was said that departure from Ellis Island had been arranged for "within a few days."

The German seamen have been held at Ellis Island since Dec. 20, following their rescue by the United States cruiser Tuscaloosa. The Tuscaloosa picked them up at sea after the German commander scuttled the luxury liner at the approach of a British destroyer bent on capture of the Columbus, fleeing homeward from Mexico.

As for the boys and older men, not of military age, detained at Ellis Island, it was arranged to send them to the Mediterranean or Europe aboard neutral vessels, whenever it might become feasible.

Dr. Seaman Long Identified With Mental Hygiene Program

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on "new faces in high places" in the health administration. Others will follow.)

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — There are almost 15,000 persons in several score asylums and mental hospitals in Wisconsin, and more than 2,500 on parole from those institutions. Every day 1 per cent of all the people in the state are incapacitated by mental disease. The state government and the counties of Wisconsin spend hundreds of thousands of dollars, raised by general taxation, employ hundreds of people to care for the unfortunate in insane institutions.

Directing that broad field of public welfare, under the reorganized welfare administration at the capitol, is a good-natured 60-year-old mental disease specialist who has not only distinguished himself in a medical career, but during a long life rose to a colonelcy in the nation's armed forces and saw service in two of the country's wars.

He is Dr. Gilbert E. Seaman — otherwise known as Colonel Seaman — director of the new division of mental hygiene in the consolidated state welfare department, former superintendent of the northern state hospital for the insane at Winnebago, former president of the state medical society, one of the state's foremost specialists in mental diseases, prominent in state military affairs, and a former chairman of the University of Wisconsin board of regents when that institution expanded its medical education and treatment facilities to put it on a level with the leading institutions of the country.

Separate Unit
Under the old state welfare administrative system, a single department had jurisdiction over not only the problem of the insane, but of the penal and correctional institutions, child welfare, tuberculosis hospitals, and other fields.

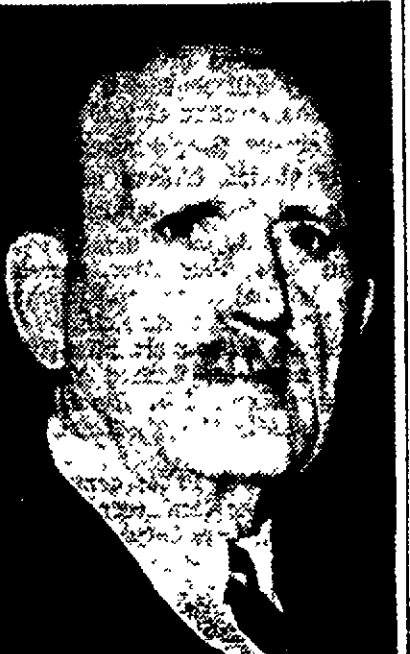

Under the new program, the division of mental hygiene is a separate unit within the department of public welfare. As its director Dr. Seaman is charged only with the responsibility of promoting the welfare of the insane and the mentally deficient. Other departments are similarly independent in the field of relief and pensions, child welfare, and corrections.

Under his wing as mental hygiene chief Dr. Seaman will have five large institutions, the Mendota state hospital, the Winnebago institution which he formerly managed for six years, the northern and southern colonies for the feeble-minded at Chippewa Falls and Union Grove, and the Central State hospital for the Criminal Insane at Waupun.

Moreover, he will have general supervisory authority over, and will be in close touch with the 37 county asylums, unique in American insane care, which shelter the bulk of the state's mentally ill.

Likes State Program
Long associated with the Wisconsin program for the insane, either as a consultant or as an active administrator as a hospital head, it is unlikely that the new director contemplates any fundamental changes in policy in his new job. He points out that he has long supported the theory of insane care developed in Wisconsin, which is slowly being emulated in other states, and which involves a decentralized system of handling the chronic insane through a system of numerous county institutions endowed with state aids.

In Wisconsin, Dr. Seaman explains, it has been official policy for nearly half a century to commit insane persons to the state hospitals when in the judgment of their medical staffs expert medical care will be beneficial. Only when it is clear that further hospitalization is futile, when hope for a cure is gone, are the patients transferred to the county institutions.

NEW DIRECTOR

Dr. Gilbert E. Seaman, new director of the state division of mental hygiene, has been a student of mental disease for almost half a century and was promoted to his new job from the superintendency of the northern hospital for the insane at Winnebago. In his new capacity he is charged with supervising activities affecting almost 15,000 patients presently in state and county mental institutions.

That system is incomparably better than the plan employed in some of the large eastern centers, where many thousands of insane patients are herded together in mammoth institutions, where individual attention is impracticable and impossible, and where all attempt at individuality is given up and patients are known only by number, he says.

One of the immediate problems which will confront the new administrative director is a crowded condition in almost all state institutions, and the fact that the percentage of mental disease in the population is steadily growing. For several years state officials have pointed out that serious overcrowding in some hospitals presents serious hazards, but this year rather than granting an increase, the legislature reduced the funds for the maintenance of those hospitals.

Dapper Man
Dr. Seaman is a mellow, somewhat dapper gentleman who believes his years. In a neatly tailored blue suit, spats, and bright red tie, he directs state policy affecting thousands of patients, and additional thousands of taxpayers in one of the most expensive fields of state activity from an office which he shares with his superior officer, Director Frank Klode of the welfare department, because of the fact that the capitol is overcrowded too.

For almost half a century he has devoted himself to the scientific study of mental problems. He was born in Alpena, Michigan, and educated in the local schools and the Episcopal academy at Detroit. After graduating from the Michigan college of medicine in 1891, he studied in Germany for two years during a period when German statesmanship was represented by Prince Bismarck and German scholarship attained such a brilliance as to attract students from all over the world.

Returning to the United States, he became a staff member of the Milwaukee sanatorium, a lecturer on neuro-psychiatry in the American College of physicians and surgeons, and then became a general practitioner in Milwaukee. He served in the Spanish-American war and in the Philippines as a medical officer, and later became chief medical officer of the Wisconsin National guard and chief surgeon of the 32nd division of the A.E.F. in France. Later he became medical officer of the sixth army corps and chairman of the medical advisory committee of the U. S. veterans' bureau as supervisor of that unit's hospitals. He was given the distinguished service medal for his World war work and membership in the French Legion of Honor.

He was chairman of the University of Wisconsin board of regents when the university installed a complete course in medicine and built the Wisconsin General hospital on the campus as an auxiliary teaching unit.

Republicans May Pick Convention Date Next Month

Washington—(AP)—Continuing to jockey with Democratic officials over 1940 campaign arrangements, the Republican national committee was called Wednesday to meet Feb. 18, when it will set a date and place for the party's national convention.

The Democratic committee will make similar decisions Feb. 5 under a recent notification by national chairman James A. Farley. Thus the Republicans, if they wish, can hold their convention after the Democrats have assembled. Although this would depart from custom, a number of party leaders have advocated the change on the theory that it would give the Republicans the strategic advantage of knowing the Democratic candidates and platform.

Smaller Cities Like Ohio's Springfield Hold U. S. Future

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Springfield, O.—Several years ago the federal government selected this as one of three typical American cities in which to conduct a trial census of unemployment. Springfield was selected because it was a prime example of a well-diversified smaller city where conditions were considered "typically American."

The big American city has become a special problem in America. Most of them have acquired larger proletarian populations. It is the mayors of the big cities who have combined in a highly effective lobby at Washington—known as the conference of mayors—to fight for large relief and public works appropriations. The big cities have been the strongest allies of the administration in forcing large relief appropriations out of congress throughout the depression. These large cities are enjoying a rapid rise in industrial production and business activity which puts the statistics back up to or above 1929 levels. Their relief and unemployment problems seemingly remain almost as acute as ever. It is from the large city, like Cleveland, that we draw the depressing picture which persists even after business activity has recovered. It is when we look at the large city that we wonder about the future of America and our ability to cope with the unemployment problem.

But the large city is only part of America. Less than 40 per cent of the families of the nation live in cities of 100,000 or larger. Sixty per cent live in the smaller cities, and in the country. The smaller community may have its troubles. Some of them are in serious difficulties. One-industry towns boom or bust alternatively as conditions in their industry, over which they may have no control whatever, fluctuate up and down. Those communities present serious problems—the very problems which force the government in the direction of planned economy and larger management over private business.

Must Bring Employment, Comfort to Population
Preservation of the free ways which we have known in this country depends largely upon the ability of the medium-sized, independent, diversified community to stand on its own feet and lead an existence which brings employment and reasonably comfortable living to its population.

So long as that can be done in the majority of the smaller communities, the thing which we call the American way of life is safe. If those communities should despair and give up the fight, anything might happen. They were in black despair in 1933. They were so desperate that they were willing for President Roosevelt to try anything. By 1938 these small towns were feeling more confident, or perhaps also feeling that the administration had not solved the problems, and throughout the country was registered the spectacular backsliding toward the more conservative Republican party. They still constitute the heart of America and give the pulse beat for the country. In Evansville, Ind., a community somewhat above 100,000 population, well isolated from larger cities like St. Louis, Indianapolis and Louisville, I sensed an expectation of growth, a confidence based upon present expansion which makes it superfluous for anyone to be anxious about that community.

Must Have Prosperity Without Spur of Growth
Here in Springfield is a medium-sized city of slightly more than 70,000 which shows signs of being well along in its maturity. It is hemmed in by larger cities—Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati. Springfield is trying to demonstrate that a community can exist comfortably without the stimulus of spectacular growth. That is going to be the problem for many American communities. The days of large population growth probably are over for many communities, particularly the medium-sized ones, and prosperity must come from other sources than mere accretion of population.

Nearly half of the families are home owners here in Springfield. Only 3 per cent of the population is foreign-born. Workmen are highly skilled in tool-making, farm-implement manufacture, printing. This

Wants Congress to Stay Within Budget Figures

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt told members of the house Democratic steering committee Wednesday that congress should stay within its budget.

One member said Mr. Roosevelt, in a half-hour meeting with the legislators, laid special emphasis on that point and left the impression that he did not want congress to take any action which might make it necessary to raise the present $45,000,000,000 limit on the national debt.

The 15-man committee, which helps shape Democratic policy in the house, called on the president at his request. Both the White House and committee members indicated that additional conferences would be held from time to time.

The chamber of commerce places total employment here at almost 14,000—slightly up from a year; 10 per cent below 1929. The state unemployment compensation office reports 3,300 applications for work on file. Perhaps 5,000 of these are physically able to do a day's work. Those are the figures on a cold day in January.

Field Secretary Outlines Objectives of PTA Groups For Franklin Mothers Club

POINTING out that Parent-Teacher associations are non-commercial, non-partisan and open to all for the purpose of preserving the American ideal of education and promoting the welfare of children in the home, school, church and community, Miss Emma Brookmire, field secretary of the Wisconsin Congress of Parents and Teachers, discussed the advantages of being affiliated with a state and national organization at the meeting of Franklin Mothers club Wednesday afternoon at the school.

Through membership in a state organization a group is able to throw the force of the club into promoting a city-wide program and pool the influence of the various individual members in a united effort for good, Miss Brookmire stated. Various materials and information pertaining to parent-teacher relationships and better understanding and cooperation between the two are made available to organizations which are affiliated with the state group, she added. The speaker pointed out that there is a place for the fathers in parent-teacher organizations, for they are vitally interested in the welfare of their children. She also urged that grandparents, uncles and aunts be invited to join also, for wherever an adult touches the child's life, there is an influence.

Miss Brookmire warned parent-teacher organizations against placing too much emphasis on sheer entertainment or becoming money-making groups. She also stated that in the nation-wide program of Parent-Teachers association, the members cooperate with the schools but do not attempt to operate them.

General Discussion
Following Miss Brookmire's talk, a general discussion took place as to the advisability of Franklin Mothers club becoming affiliated with the Wisconsin Congress of Parents and Teachers, but the matter was tabled until the next meeting. It was decided to send informative ballots to all parents of Franklin school children before the Feb. 14 meeting. The ballot committee appointed includes Mrs. T. H. Barkow, Mrs. Genevieve Cook, Mrs. Selma Abendroth and Mrs. Theodore Radtke, and the telephone committee consists of Mrs. H. C. Crane and Mrs. Lee Lurie.

Plans were made for a card party Jan. 19 at the school when a prize will be given at each table. The following committees were named: Dances and teas, Mrs. Edward Dreier and Mrs. Edward Junge; prizes, Mrs. Stanley Hamilton, Mrs. Edward Baehall and Miss Dorothy Schoengarth; games, Mrs. Oscar Radtke, Mrs. Clarence Greiner, Mrs. R. D. McGee, Mrs. Rudolph Kubitz; kitchen, Mrs. Roy Burmeister, chairman; Mrs. Andrew Kangas, Mrs. Ray Spangenberg, Mrs. Daniel De Braal, Mrs. Robert Shortt, Mrs. Frank Schroeder, Mrs. James D. Reeder and Mrs. Charles Maas; cards, Mrs. Emil Peterson and Mrs. Ben Rowland.

The club will buy draperies for the hall in the school.

Contralto Presents Recital at Tea for Alumnae of Sorority

Gladys Thompson Bachman, contralto, appeared in recital at a tea given for the members and patronesses of the Fox River Valley Alumnae club of Phi Epsilon sorority Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. K. Brown, E. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah.

Her enthusiastic audience found in Mrs. Bachman a singer of considerable artistic ability whose interpretation of songs ranging from the light-hearted "Presto, Presto" to the intense feeling of "The Cry of Rachel" was most satisfactory. Her voice is flexible and throughout its wide range possesses the warmth and rich quality which give the contralto its particular appeal.

Mrs. Bachman is a student of Royal Dammun, and since taking up her residence in Vermont she has appeared with increasing frequency in recital in the east. She is a Lawrence graduate and a former resident of this vicinity.

Able assisted by Nettie Steninger Fullinwider of the Lawrence conservatory faculty, Mrs. Bachman sang the following program yesterday afternoon:

Ich Liebe Dich Grieg
Der Tod und Das Madchen Grieg
Mit Einer Primula Veris Grieg
Presto, Presto 17th Century
Mon Coeur Souvre a ta voix Charles

The Cry of Rachel Saint-Saens

Librarian Is Town and Gown Club Speaker

MISS ANNA TARR, Lawrence college librarian, told the story of Argentina, from its early discovery to its present day problems of trade and international relations, at the meeting of the Town and Gown club Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Arthur Weston's home, 738 E. Argentina, Miss Tarr explained, ceased to be a province of Spain when it declared its independence May 25, 1810. Its constitution is similar to ours, but the president holds office for six years and is allowed no second term. Ortiz is the present president. One of the greatest producers of surplus food products in the world, and therefore an exporting country, Argentina is essentially an agricultural nation, she pointed out. It has the resources, thrift and intelligent public spirit, she added, to insure its national greatness.

The club will continue its study of Argentina when it meets Jan. 24 at Miss Tarr's apartment to hear Mrs. Sara Baker speak on "Argentina, her People and Customs."

Mrs. A. G. Meating will speak on "Old Glass" at the meeting of the Valparaiso Guild at 730 Friday night at the home of Mrs. Maurice Myse, 705 N. Appleton street. Assistant hostesses at the meeting will be Mrs. Fred Jentz and Mrs. Herbert Voecks.

ty-seven coal diggers in an eastern section of the workings came out at 4 p. m. unaware there had been a blast.

Cause of the mishap was not determined immediately although District Mine Inspector W. C. Sturgiss theorized it might have resulted when the men cut through to some long unused, gas-filled entry. The state department of mines reported the Bartley No. 1 was gaseous but was thoroughly rock-dusted.

Motorman Roy Ashworth was almost at the foot of the shaft at the time of the explosion and while his motor drowned out the noise, he knew something was wrong "back in" when a big cloud of dust swept over him.

The first of seven rescue crews assembled quickly from this village and nearby communities found two men killed near the shaft. The bodies were left below while the workers pushed ahead.

Mine officials said the two victims apparently had disobeyed orders and were walking out of the mine. The rule is that although work is finished the men must wait and come out on the regularly scheduled "man trips," hauled by mine motors.

Relatives Await News

While rescue workers dug below, 300 men stood by above ground to help when needed. Some 1,000 to 2,000 persons stood outside all night in a roped area 500 feet from the mine, warning themselves at bonfires while awaiting word from the bottom of the shaft. More than 100 wives and relatives of the trapped men gathered in another roped enclosure about 75 feet from the lip of the blast, possibly West Virginia's worst mine disaster in more than a decade, is the first to occur at the Bartley No. 1 which has been operating since early 1929 in one of the busiest and richest coal sections of the state. The mine normally employs 250 and is located on a hill

Mutual Insurance Firm Reelects Two Directors At Fremont Gathering

Fremont—At the annual meeting of the Waupaca County Mutual Insurance company at Kundinger's hall Tuesday afternoon the report showed that receipts during 1939 amounted to $3,980.04, with a balance of $2,703.56 in the treasury up to Dec. 31, 1939. The company carried $2,322,755 of insurance and 89 new policies were issued, making a total of 440 policies in force.

William Klatt, Mukwa, and Alfred Pomeroy, New London, were reelected directors for a three year term. Other officers are: President, Henry Kohl, town of Caledonia, vice president, William Klatt, Mukwa; secretary, Alfred Pomeroy, New London; treasurer, William Wangelin, Redfield; Holdover directors are A. N. Garrows, Mukwa, and William Redeman, Fremont.

The annual meeting of the Women's Improvement club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Albert Averill. Directors elected were Mrs. Clifford Lind and Mrs. Carl Abraham, after which they reelected the officers. They are: President, Mrs. Walter Neuschaefer; vice president, Mrs. George Dobbins; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Edwin Hammen. Following the business session five hundred was played. Mrs. Lavern Lovejoy won first prize, and consolation went to Mrs. Ray Looker. A lunch was served.

above Dry Fork river 140 miles south of Charleston.

Entries fan out from the shaft while on the western side the tunnel leaves the foot of the shaft and runs back several thousand feet then branches. Sturgiss fixed the possible location of the explosion in the "main g" head, from which "four left" branches.

Hope for 25 Men

"Twenty-five men in the fourth left have a better chance than any others, providing the explosion occurred in main g, and indications are that is true," said the inspector.

J. J. Hammond, company official, expressed the hope that at least 40 men were in sections not badly damaged and that they might have survived.

It was after midnight before authorities could give out a tentative list of those trapped. The number of miners on the day shift in the affected areas at one time ranged up to 95 but hours of checking cut the figure to 91, two of them being found dead.

Lights glowed all night on hastily strung wires about the shaft mouth. State troopers kept the crowd from the entrance. Red Cross workers had coffee and food on hand for rescue crews when they came out to rest. Six ambulances were standing by with 10 others available at Welch. 20 miles away, oxygen equipment also was on hand, manned by crews ready to help any who were brought out alive.

The only telephone in this isolated village of 2,000 persons is connected with the mine company's office and it was two hours before news reached Welch yesterday that "something had happened" at the mine.

Protests Taken Under Advisement By Commission

Conservation Body Hears Complaints of Lake Superior Fishermen

Madison—(P)—Protests against recently established commercial fishing regulations for Lake Superior were taken under advisement yesterday by the conservation commission.

Chairman James Corcoran, of Webster, said the commission probably would reach a decision at its February meeting.

Last October the commission increased the size of gill net mesh from four and one-fourth to four and one-half inches; raised the legal measurements of trout and whitefish; increased pound net mesh from two to four and one-half inches; and ordered an indefinite closed season on perch, pike and pickerel.

H. J. Ehlers and Emory M. Jones, both of Cornucopia, testified the ban on perch, pike and pickerel would "wipe out" Douglas, Bayfield and Ashland county fishermen.

Increase in the pound net mesh, they added, also would hinder pickerel fishing, a lucrative part of their industry.

Julian Nelson, of Bayfield, and Uldrick Frostman, of Washburn, however, approved the increased size and the closed season, declaring both measures necessary for fish life propagation.

Record Irks Catlin

The meeting was marked by a sharp exchange between Corcoran and Commissioner Mark Catlin. Sr., of Appleton, over the minutes of last month's session.

Claiming the record had not been changed when he called attention to inaccuracies, Catlin said: "I object to printing only certain portions of the minutes when a full report is not given."

"I see no reason for a detailed report on all discussions of the commission," Corcoran replied. "If you only come down here then to sit around and say nothing, it's no use to come," Catlin said. Catlin did not answer Corcoran's request to specify the errors.

Cheboygan, Mich.—(P)—The coast guard resumed its efforts today to free the lumber carrier M. H. Stuart from the ice in the straits of Mackinac, where it has been trapped for two days.

Coast guards from the Bois Blanc Island station succeeded in bringing the barge within a mile of shore yesterday. Captain E. J. Lawry of the M. H. Stuart walked ashore on the ice and obtained supplies for his crew.

The vessel operates between Beaver Island and Charlevoix.

Catlin Denounces Alleged "Doctoring" of Commission Minutes

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The state conservation commission yesterday declined to prescribe regulations for the use of automobiles on the treacherous ice of Lake Winnebago. Members asserted that they have no authority to regulate the use of autos by ice fishermen on the lake.

A petition to restrict automobiles on the ice was presented to the commission by Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimmons of Fond du Lac, who recalled that last Sunday two cars crashed through the ice of the lake and caused the drowning of four persons.

The legislator said that drownings in the lake had increased in recent years.

William J. P. Aberg, a member of the commission, observed "that we will be going out of our way to tell fishermen how to get to the lake if we regulate the use of their cars. It's public water."

No Authority

He added that the automobiles are used as a means of transportation and are not a part of the fishing equipment of the fishermen, with the result that the state commission has no authority to prescribe rules on the subject.

Commissioner Mark Catlin of Appleton, commenting on Fitzsimmons' citation of last Sunday's fatal accidents on the lake, said that "no one with any sense would have gone on the lake with a car last Sunday, but what can we do about it?"

Catlin voiced bitter objection to alleged "doctoring" of the minutes of the conservation commission, charging that certain phases of debate were omitted from the minutes and intimidated only sections of discussion favorable to the position of H. W. MacKenzie, director of the commission, were included. Catlin argued heatedly at some length with MacKenzie and James J. Corcoran, Webster, commission chairman.

Requested by Webster to "be specific" regarding the omissions to which he referred, Catlin declared he wanted "a full report of the discussions or no report at all." He said he objected "to the printing of only certain portions of the minutes when a full report is not given."

Catlin Wins Point

Corcoran commented he could "see no reason for a detailed report on all discussions of the commission," to which Catlin retorted: "If you only come down here to sit around and say nothing, it's no use in coming."

The argument was settled with an agreement only definite actions taken by the commission would be included in the minutes, but that a transcript of all discussions would be available in separate form.

Famous Fly Caster Is Speaker at Meeting of Conservation Group

Waupaca—John Kosballek, Stevens Point, nationally-known fly caster, was the guest of junior conservationists Tuesday evening at the high school. At his lodge on Deer lake, ten miles south of Waupaca, Mr. Kosballek has built a private fish hatchery to aid in supplying lakes and streams in this territory with trout and bass. He believes that if only 10 per cent of the fishermen would donate but a few minutes each year to this same hobby fish raising would not be so difficult and the streams would not be so depleted of fish.

Loch Leven lodge, summer home of the Kosballeks, is on forty acres of white pine timber land located in the town of Dayton. Myriads of springs feed the lake that has a temperature of 52 degrees at a depth of 50 feet, making it a desirable place for trout to live. Water snakes, deadly enemies of trout, were found in abundance when the work was first begun but are almost exterminated at this time. Stumps that were on the property were sunk in the lake and an insect water bug lay the larvae upon which the fish feed. In the pools which were built with the help of the Inak Walton League of Stevens Point, the fish are kept until of sufficient size to plant in Dean lake or in Emmons creek, mecca of fishermen.

Colored motion pictures of the hatchery, the lake and the grounds were exhibited to the group and lessons in conservation were given to the boys present by Mr. Kosballek. Accompanying Mr. Kosballek were his son, Joe, and Frank Hornberg, Portage county conservation warden.

bureau officials to iron out the situation.

Observing that "a young revolution is brewing" Fischer said that local residents want to know whether they can resist efforts of federal agents to put them off the purchase area. He said that the controversy is "becoming pretty acrimonious."

Col. A. H. Smith, legal counsel for the state conservation department, gave an opinion that since the federal government bought the tract in question in a proprietary capacity, Washington has the same right to restrict trespass as any private owner has.

He pointed out however that an opinion from the attorney general recently declared that the federal area is within state control for the purpose of enforcing hunting and fishing laws, and that the Indian settlers on the lands can be arrested and fined for hunting or fishing out of season or for any other violations. The area is not a part of the reservation, where federal law applies, but is a part of the state's sovereignty.

He recalled that a case arising under an application of the state's jurisdiction in the area is now pending in the circuit court, before Judge Arnold Murphy of Marinette.

The problem was put before the commission yesterday when Fischer presented a petition from the Gresham sportsmen's club protesting against restrictions on hunting and fishing in the 16,000 acre Indian section.

Severe Cold Makes Covering Finnish War Difficult Job

BY MAX HARRELSON

Copenhagen—(P)—Between 60 and 70 war correspondents are covering the hostilities in Finland, and their difficulties are great even when there is no danger from bombs or bursting artillery shells.

The cold, frequently hitting 40 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit; the long winter nights made worse by blackouts, and unlimited hours of work—all these test the mettle of even the most seasoned newspapermen.

Most of these war correspondents had their baptism of fire in the Finnish war in the opening day air bombardment of Helsinki, the capital. Some of them have been under fire at the front, and all have had to run for shelter during the frequent Soviet Russian air raids of Finnish cities.

Finnish censorship, although not notably severe, offers difficulties. All news, cabled or telephoned, must be submitted to the censor. Most troublesome of all is the hampering of communication between cities.

AP Has Large Staff

The Associated Press has a large staff of its own in Finland. Lynn Heinzerling, formerly stationed in Berlin and later at Danzig, took charge at Helsinki well before the Soviet invasion. He had with him a native assistant, Paul Sjoblom, the Associated Press peacetime correspondent.

Soon Heinzerling was joined by Thomas F. Hawkins, recently in charge at Stockholm, and later by Wade Werner, head of the Copenhagen bureau.

The correspondents at the front encounter trying weather conditions. Hawkins recently took 40 hours to tour the front by motor car, including 24 hours of actual driving through the cold and with only four or five hours' sleep at farmhouses or field hospitals.

"The biggest problem in covering the war," he wrote, "is keeping warm feet." This is what he had to wear:

Reindeer boots, felt shoes, doekskin and inner wool socks, two pairs of pants (one of heavy ski weight), two suits of underwear, two woolen shirts, a sweater jacket and a fur or sheepskin coat.

Coverage of the war now is well arranged by the larger news organizations, with some men stationed in Helsinki, some going to the front and some to provincial cities when the occasion arises. Military passes are issued for such travel.

In Helsinki are made public the daily army communique and announcements from the government information bureau.

Can't Check Rumors

Foreign correspondents in Helsinki have difficulty getting information from other cities except that given out officially because they are forbidden to telephone between cities in Finland and therefore have trouble checking any rumors or reports they may hear.

In such cases the news usually gets out first through large Scandinavian newspapers whose dispatches are relayed to the United States and other nations abroad. These newspapers even in peacetime have Finnish correspondents at all large Finnish cities, and these provincial newsmen in wartime may file news to their papers—through the Helsinki censorship office—while the foreign correspondents are forbidden to telephone the provinces.

With its large staff, the AP is able to cover the northern and eastern fronts with men on the spot, maintain a 24-hour service in Helsinki and have men available for dashes elsewhere as the news breaks.

The defeat was the first for the St. Joseph team of the season while the victory enabled the Junior Zephyrs to tie for first place. St. Patrick's Shamrocks also took advantage of the St. Joseph defeat and gained a tie for first place by defeating St. Mary's of Appleton 13 to 7.

Zephyrs Trip Leaders
The Junior Zephyrs tripped St. Joseph of Appleton from the league lead but only after a thrilling battle. The score at the end of the regulation time was tied at 11-all. In the first overtime Bates put the Appleton team ahead with field goal. Rippled tied the score at 13-all with a goal in the last 25 seconds of the period.

The second overtime was even more furious with Derfus putting his team ahead on a goal. In the last five seconds Kluba intercepted a St. Joseph pass, fired at the basket and the ball rolled around and in, tying the score once more.

The Zephyrs had made only one of nine free shots in the regular game and overtime period but came through when they counted. Three St. Joseph players shot first. They made one, missed and counted on the third to total 17 points. The first two Zephyrs to shoot made their gift shots to tie the score but the third man missed. ## Fears Socialistic Form of State if Taxes Aren't Cut

Taxpayers Alliance Official Says Rising Costs Threaten Liberty

Neenah—America will have some form of complete government control within the next generation because its public is reluctant to study taxation problems, to consider seriously the mounting expenditures and apparently is not interested in maintaining the heritage of liberty, C. S. Holloway, chief statistician of the Wisconsin Taxpayers alliance, Madison, predicted at the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club dinner meeting in the Valley Inn last night.

The higher the taxation, the less liberty and more regimentation is indicated said the speaker as he held out but one hope for salvation from America's approach to some form of a socialistic state. That hope, Mr. Holloway said, is that citizens take time and effort to study government, to determine that expenditures are sane and sound and within the ability of all to pay, that borrowing be stopped and expenditures cut down.

Relief expenditures in Wisconsin increased from eleven million dollars in 1931 to one hundred and eight million in 1938.

Must Cut Relief Costs
Relief, said Mr. Holloway, used to be a disgrace; today it is a privilege. It is important to remember that from an economic standpoint, you are maintaining through relief non-productive workers and that maintenance is apt to squeeze you down to a lower level, for all monies paid out to relief limits the amount paid for other governmental expenditures such as schools. The old tax system is not adequate for the new heavy relief roads. We must either accept higher taxation or we must cut down relief.

Mr. Holloway outlined the work of the Wisconsin Taxpayers alliance, pointing out that this non-political, non-profit organization was trying to educate the public to a full awareness of the taxation problem and the consequences of an increasing amount of economic control by government. Mr. Holloway displayed a chart showing that since 1929, the share of the public in government has increased from about 9 percent to 19 percent. When government gets 50 percent of the national income, America will be a socialistic state.

Miss Ruth Williams, chairman of the finance committee in charge of the meeting, introduced the speaker. During the business session which followed, Mrs. Leo Stoenbauer, 742 S. Commercial street, Neenah, and Miss Belle Pickard, 508 Watson street, Ripon, were voted into the club membership. It was announced that the January meeting of the Book club will be Wednesday evening, Jan. 17, at the home of Mrs. Ida Tauber. Miss Ethel MacKinnon won the Sunshine Fund gift.

Condition of Newsboy Is Reported Improved
Neenah—The condition of Francis Mulvey, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mulvey, route 1, Neenah, who was injured seriously in an accident at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon on County Trunk Highway A, a half mile south of Neenah, was "improved," at noon today, according to the attending physician. The doctor said there is hope for recovery.

Mulvey, an Appleton Post-Crescent carrier, was injured in the accident in which John Heller, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Heller, 212 Harrison street, was killed. Heller was an Appleton Post-Crescent truck driver.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising should be placed by telephone 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Y.W.C.A. Secretary Shows Madonna Print Collection

Neenah—On exhibit this week in the Twin City Y. W. C. A. is the collection of Madonna prints, owned by Miss Florence Warner, general secretary of the Twin City Y. W. C. A.

Miss Warner, who began her collection about five years ago, has more than 700 prints, all of which are cataloged and mounted on black drawing paper to bring out the coloring of the prints. Inscribed on each mounting is the artist's name and date.

"I think I started interest in my collection about five years ago when, in a catalog of pictures, I read of 50 Madonna prints for a very small sum. I ordered them all. When I received them, I realized how many Madonna prints there are and how many I have never seen," said Miss Warner as she told how she happened to collect the prints.

At least half of Miss Warner's collection are in color and among them are some which friends brought back from abroad. From South America, Miss Warner has one which shows the Madonna with typical Mexican and Spanish characteristics and the Child is wrapped in papoose fashion. The Christian Chinese have been drawing some Madonna and Child pictures too and these show the mother and child typically Chinese.

For sheer beauty, Miss Warner likes the Raphael and Botticelli Madonnas. Among her collection she has one print of the Madonna that dates from the first century. These early pictures were scratched on the walls of the catacombs and were found among old manuscripts of the monks.

Models Were Barred
Miss Warner finds the prints of special interest too because they show how long it was before the babies looked like babies in the paintings. The babies of the early paintings look like miniature adults. The reason for this may be because for years, models were not allowed, they were considered wicked; and painting was done from a recipe.

The recipe for painting an eye was "mix a little black with a little white, fill up the pupil of the eye; add to it yet more white and fill in eyes on both sides." The recipe for painting Mary include the fact that she was to be in her middle age, height, 3 cubits; complexion, color of wheat; hair and eyes, brown; middle size nose and long fingers.

Miss Warner stated that there were five different types of Madonnas, portrait Madonna; Madonna enthroned, Madonna in the sky; pastoral Madonna and the Madonna in home environment. The titles of the pictures are interesting. Miss Warner stated, because the titles explain the picture although the article named might be insignificant. One of the titles, "The Madonna and the Bean Flower," indicate this. Miss Warner explained, Murillo painted many Madonnas but all are under one title but not one is alike.

Miss Warner has prepared a lecture on Madonna prints which she gives in connection with the exhibit at club meetings.

Menasha High to Battle DePere in Conference Game

Bluejays Seek Victory After Three Straight Defeats in League

Menasha—With three successive defeats in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference charged against them, Menasha High school cagers will attempt to get back on the winning side Friday night when they travel to West DePere for another conference game.

Those three successive defeats have dropped the Bluejays from a tie for first in the conference to fifth place. However, the Menasha team will be favored to defeat West DePere. The Black Phantoms have won a single game and lost four tilts.

Shawano defeated West 26 to 18 and the Bluejays beat Shawano 28 to 24. Kaukauna tripped West 28 to 20 and while Menasha lost to the Kaws by an even greater margin, they had a decidedly off night. Against Neenah West DePere suffered a 43 to 19 defeat and New London trounced the Phantoms 37 to 11. Menasha also lost to those two teams but the margin of each defeat was four points.

Coach Leslie Ansgore will have to guard against a let-down on the part of the Bluejay cagers Friday night. They played a strong game against New London Tuesday night and may slump against West DePere. They battled against superior height in the Neenah game and then suffered a slump at Kaukauna a week later.

Trouble with Fouls
After curbing their tendency toward fouls by committing only seven against Kaukauna, the Bluejays hit another high mark against New London Tuesday. Some of those may be blamed to the officiating. In five conference games the Bluejays have committed 75 fouls, an average of 15 a game.

The Bluejay average from the free throw line is slightly under .500. They have made 36 and missed 39. Opponents have made 39 and missed 62. The team has scored 128 points in five games while opponents have counted 123 points.

The Jays probably will come in for some more drill on defense this week. Several times they slipped up against New London with one defensive man trying to stop two New London players.

West DePere scored its first victory of the season Tuesday night, edging Clintonville 20 to 17 at DePere. Menasha beat Clintonville 41 to 13. The Phantoms will have the advantage of their own small floor too Friday night.

Movie Land Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—In pre-talkie days, it was an axiom that the average professional life of a screen star was only five years.

Talkies, by placing greater emphasis on ability and personality than on mere beauty, have stretched that span of life more and more. Unable to find enough capable players to handle the constantly increasing number of good roles each year, producers have had to depend upon old-timers who, under the old system of use-and-throw-away, would have been relentlessly shuffled into the discard. Time after time, the veterans have made good. I'm beginning to wonder if there is a limit today, this side of the grave, for a really capable star.

Just a year ago, Joan Crawford and Greta Garbo, both of whom had been top-flight stars for nearly fifteen years, were considered "through" by Hollywood wise-acs. Yet, today, as the result of roles that gave them a chance to be something more than personalities, they're back on top, with every prospect of new, extended reigns.

Now that Garbo has displayed her flair for comedy and Crawford has proven unsuspected dramatic ability, there is no reason why they shouldn't be flourishing at the end of another fifteen years.

I'm glad to see that "five-years-then-out" nonsense changed. Whenever young players quit thinking of screen success as a brief blaze of glory and consider it in terms of a life-long career, an element of sanity long-needed will be injected into both movie-making and Hollywood's social life.

CUFF NOTES: Financial success of "Snow White" and "Gulliver" has all major studios planning feature-length cartoons, with Metro scheduling immediate production. . . . That knee injury suffered by Gary Cooper is more serious than first reports indicated. . . . Warner Baxter is shopping for saddle horses.

Ray McCarey, currently directing 8-year-old Johnny Sheffield in "Little Orvie," started this assignment with the determination to observe all the rules of child psychology. Under no circumstances would he lose his temper, speak harshly or do anything else apt to excite a sensitive little boy. And he kept his resolve nobly until Johnny's voice, in 14 successive takes, was too muffled to be understandable. Ray simmered, boiled, finally exploded. "For the love of heaven, Johnny," he bellowed, "what the devil is wrong? We can't understand a word you're saying!" "Gee, Mr. McCarey," said Johnny, "Maybe I'd better take this out of my mouth." And displayed a handful of rubber bands he had been chewing!

Retailers Hear Suggestion for Paper Festival

Proposal Referred to Chamber Board for Consideration

A paper festival for Appleton, similar to mardi gras celebrations in other American cities, was suggested by Harry Rotter, manager of the Conway hotel, at a meeting of the retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

Rotter said many cities have celebrations using their principal industries as a theme and cited the case of Savannah, Ga., which has established a paper festival, a city where the paper industry is comparatively new.

He told the retailers the possibilities of ideas and costumes from the various paper made in the Fox river valley was unlimited and reminded them Appleton is ideally situated for such a celebration.

The retail division referred the proposal to the board of directors of the Chamber for investigation. The retail division indicated it would back such a celebration if it is approved by the board.

Plans for another cooperative sales event soon were discussed at the meeting. Appointed to the committee to make arrangements were Wayne Jones, chairman, W. D. Kaulum, Royall LaRose, J. R. Whitman and Henry Williamson.

A report of the finance committee showed, the division spent $473.71 for Christmas decorations on College avenue this year and $230.44 for other Christmas projects. A total of $1,205 remains in the treasury.

Railroads Topic Of Debate Meet

Appleton, New London Teams to Argue Question Friday

Appleton High school's debate squads will debate the problem of federal control of railroads with New London teams Friday afternoon at the high school. New London will bring three affirmative and three negative teams to meet the Appleton debaters.

On the local squad are Ardyse Peters, Cecil Speel, Stanley Williams, Harold Wieland, Richard Palmbach, James Plette, Beverly Olson, Elliot Jacobson, Robert Krueger, Oscar Boldt, Edward Leisinger, Emily Posniak, Sylvia Wittman, Gunther Holz, and Diana Caramella. The debaters are coached by Edgar Hagene, social science instructor, with the assistance of Herbert Simon, commercial instructor.

Debates have been held with Oshkosh, Menasha, Neenah, Kaukauna, New London, and Kimberly. Return debates with most of these neighboring cities are being planned to bring the season to a close early in February.

The regular forensic award will be granted to all those debaters who have participated in three or more regular inter-scholastic debates.

The squad has a general meeting every Monday when the coaches make a general criticism of the work of the previous week and make recommendations for future study. The squad is then divided into two groups. Each team is met individually by the coaches and special attention is given to weaknesses in speeches and manner of presentation. The students are given an opportunity for additional experience by presenting intra-mural debates for homerooms.

Warns Against Fake Solicitors Seeking Money in Appleton

Captain T. A. Raber, head of the Salvation Army unit in Appleton, today warned that fake solicitors are seeking contributions in the name of the Salvation Army in Appleton and Outagamie county.

A donor called Captain Raber recently and told him a man, dressed in a uniform similar to that worn by Army workers, solicited money by saying: "This is 50-cent night."

Captain Raber emphasized that the Salvation Army has no men solicitors at present and that during Army drives, the men do not wear uniforms. Women working for the Salvation Army on Saturday nights wear a hood and cloak but always carry their credentials.

Travels Convince Youth He Was Lucky to be Born in America

Delbert Keith Harter, a young man of 24 years who has worked his way around the world, told of his experiences with such vigor and enthusiasm to the lyceum audience of Appleton High school Wednesday afternoon that he inspired his listeners to find out a few things for themselves.

Harter began his talk by telling how the wanderlust struck him after his graduation from the University of California at Los Angeles. The first step in his travels was a journey to Australia and Tahiti on a tramp steamer. Since his capital had been only $3 for an 1,800-mile trip, he decided that he would try to go twice as far on $6.

The first step in this new expedition was to hire himself out as "assistant stogie to a stogie" on a yacht that was bound for Hawaii. The owner of the yacht changed his mind, however, and Harter began his trek to the east coast on a motorcycle. That broke down somewhere west of the Rockies and so he continued his journey via the thumb method.

Once in the east he soon found employment on boats Europe bound. His first stop was Portugal, which he described as a state completely dominated by a dictator. He took pictures of the Spanish war, smuggled them out of the country and sold them to the Associated Press. He visited Czechoslovakia and was there the day Masaryk died. He went to Palestine, Egypt, Russia. He worked in a leper colony, and from most of the 58 countries, islands and possessions which he visited he brought back souvenirs. His collection of sabers and swords seems very nearly complete.

"My travels certainly convinced me that I am lucky to be born in America," Harter stated in conclusion. "And more than that, let me tell you that you can get along with any man whether you speak his language or not, if you only show him the proper consideration."

Fund for Defense Not 'War Program,' House Is Informed

Which was largely a compendium of separate reports previously published on various phases of planning.

Wants Security Study
Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) disclosed he would ask congress to order a new study of the social security act with a view to increasing unemployment insurance payments in the lower brackets and establishing job benefits.

"A workman who is thrown out of a job through no fault of his own can get unemployment insurance," Wagner said. "If he is injured, he gets compensation, but if he is taken ill and can't work he gets nothing. I think some provision ought to be made for such cases."

The house rules committee will meet next week to consider legislation to recreate the Dies committee of un-American activities.

An informal poll showed that the renewal authorization would be approved by the committee. Both critics and proponents of the investigation have predicted that the house would roll up an overwhelming vote for renewal. The committee expired Jan. 3.

The senate banking committee asked the treasury and the RFC for recommendations on a proposed $60,000,000 loan to Finland.

Congress apparently had stymied itself on the anti-lynching bill and an independent budgetary survey today as a house move gained momentum to keep 1941 expenditures within President Roosevelt's estimate of $8,424,000,000.

House passage yesterday by 252 to 131 of the Gavanon bill making lynching a federal crime had been anticipated, but southern Democrats in the senate announced that they were determined to filibuster the measure to death.

Although no revenge was involved, house Democratic chiefs simultaneously hung up a red light against the Harrison resolution to create a joint congressional committee to comb all budget recommendations, including those for defense, before any appropriation or tax measures are passed. The senate adopted this proposal yesterday without a roll call.

Want Action on Funds
Administration leaders in the house took the view that the survey might be all right for future congresses, but the house has several supply bills ready and they do not intend to hold them up for a joint inquiry.

The first of these, the $267,000,000 deficiency bill containing funds for emergency neutrality and defense needs, was called up in the house today.

Meanwhile, the house appropriations committee was reported to have voted secretly against letting any of its subcommittees exceed the president's spending recommendations.

Try to Avert Study
Many congressmen saw in this move an attempt to show that the separate budget inquiry proposed by Senator Harrison (D-Miss.) would be unnecessary. The action followed a trip to the White House by the house Democratic steering committee, whose members reported Mr. Roosevelt told them to stay within his budget so that the national debt limit of $45,000,000,000 would not have to be raised.

If this is to be avoided, congress also will have to levy $460,000,000 of new taxes—as recommended by the president—to pay for emergency defense costs. Major sentiment now appears to be against doing this in an election year.

Moreover, several senators, including Adams (D-Colo.), feel that the extra defense budget should be diverted to restore presidential cuts in farm, relief, flood control, and other items.

It Is Said--

There was grumbling, most of it good-natured, among men of Appleton this week as the snow shoveling season appeared to be established until spring. Shovels were yanked out of their summer storage places, mittens donned, and strong men strode out to clear walks and driveways.

"Wouldn't mind it so much if the danged snow hadn't held off so long," one head of the household was heard to remark. "Though for awhile I was going to get through the whole winter without digging out of my driveway one morning."

Most of them agreed it was good exercise and that they need exercise.

Snowball Season was Inaugurated today by Appleton youngsters on their way from school.

Favorite targets for the noon barrage were classmates riding by on bicycles. The damp, fresh snow made perfect packing and there were frequent across-the-street battles waging.

There were cases, too, of the boys "picking on" the girls, but one young lady was observed who couldn't be bullied. She stood near ground, suffered only one direct hit, and winged three of her aggressors with well-aimed snow shells.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A SHORT HISTORY OF RUSSIA

II—Peter The Great Worked in Dutch Shipyard

While the great and good William Penn lived in England (and for a time in Pennsylvania,) there was in Russia a czar known in history as Peter the Great.

Peter the Great

Peter did not, of course, start out in life with the title of "the Great." He was simply little Prince Peter. At the death of the czar there was a question as to who should be given the throne.

Peter was only ten years old at the time, and he had an older half-brother named Ivan. Ivan was in line for the throne, but his brain was not sound. He was close to being feeble-minded, but most of the people did not know this fact.

Peter was named czar, but this brought on a revolt of a sort by people who wanted Ivan to rule Russia. An angry mob stormed the Kremlin, the huge fortress in Moscow.

As a result of the revolt, a new plan was carried out. Both Ivan and Peter were named as rulers. Ivan died nine years later, and after that, Peter held the throne alone.

Peter proved to be a different kind of ruler than his uncle, Ivan. He wanted to see the outside world, and to learn things from it. This led him to make a long journey.

The 25-year-old czar (or emperor) gathered a party of 270 nobles. Among them were young nobles, soldiers and jesters, and all were told to make ready for a journey to western Europe.

Peter joined the party, but did so under the name of "Peter Mik-hailov." He hoped to keep it a secret that he had left his country. The secret leaked out, however, and people knew him in several lands which he visited.

The Russians were well treated in Germany, and a German princess wrote down an account of them. She said their leader was tall and had a quick mind, but she did not like his table manners.

In Holland, Peter left the main party and went to work in a shipyard. Renting a cottage nearby, he spent some days as a workman, and dressed the same as others laboring beside him. Someone learned who he was, and he became the center of so much interest that he left the shipyard, and went to another part of Holland. At Amsterdam he spent time going through factories and art galleries.

The farthest part of the journey was to England, where the Russians spent three months. Peter hired a number of British architects, ship-builders and goldsmiths, and sent them to Russia.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Thursday, Jan. 11

Ripon at Lawrence.

Friday, Jan. 12

Carleton at Cornell.

Knox at Griswold.

Saturday, Jan. 13

Carleton at Monmouth.

Knox at Coe.

Ripon college basketball team, apparently headed for another Midwest conference basketball title, will invade Alexander gymnasium of Lawrence college for a Midwest conference battle tonight. The game will start at 8:15 and be preceded by a Ripon-Lawrence freshman duel starting at 7 o'clock.

Lawrence has copied only one Midwest game as compared to three for Ripon but the Vikings will be in top physical condition and primed mentally. Last Friday night against Carleton, the Vikings were in poor shape physically and Carleton outran them.

Lawrence's starting lineup this evening will be the same five men who have started other games this season. Ken Buesing and Jarvis Lunge will be at the guards, Art Schade at center and Willie Cape and Don Fredrickson at forwards. Next in line will be Bob Smith at guard, Herb Kirchhoff at center and Bill Masterson and Frank Hammer at forwards. Hammer's choice for a forward is the only recent change in the Vike squad. Coach Art Denney feels Hammer gives speed and experience to the forward bench.

Three Veterans
Ripon will show three veterans and four sophomores in starting and first string substitute positions. The Redmen will be big and fast and good shots.

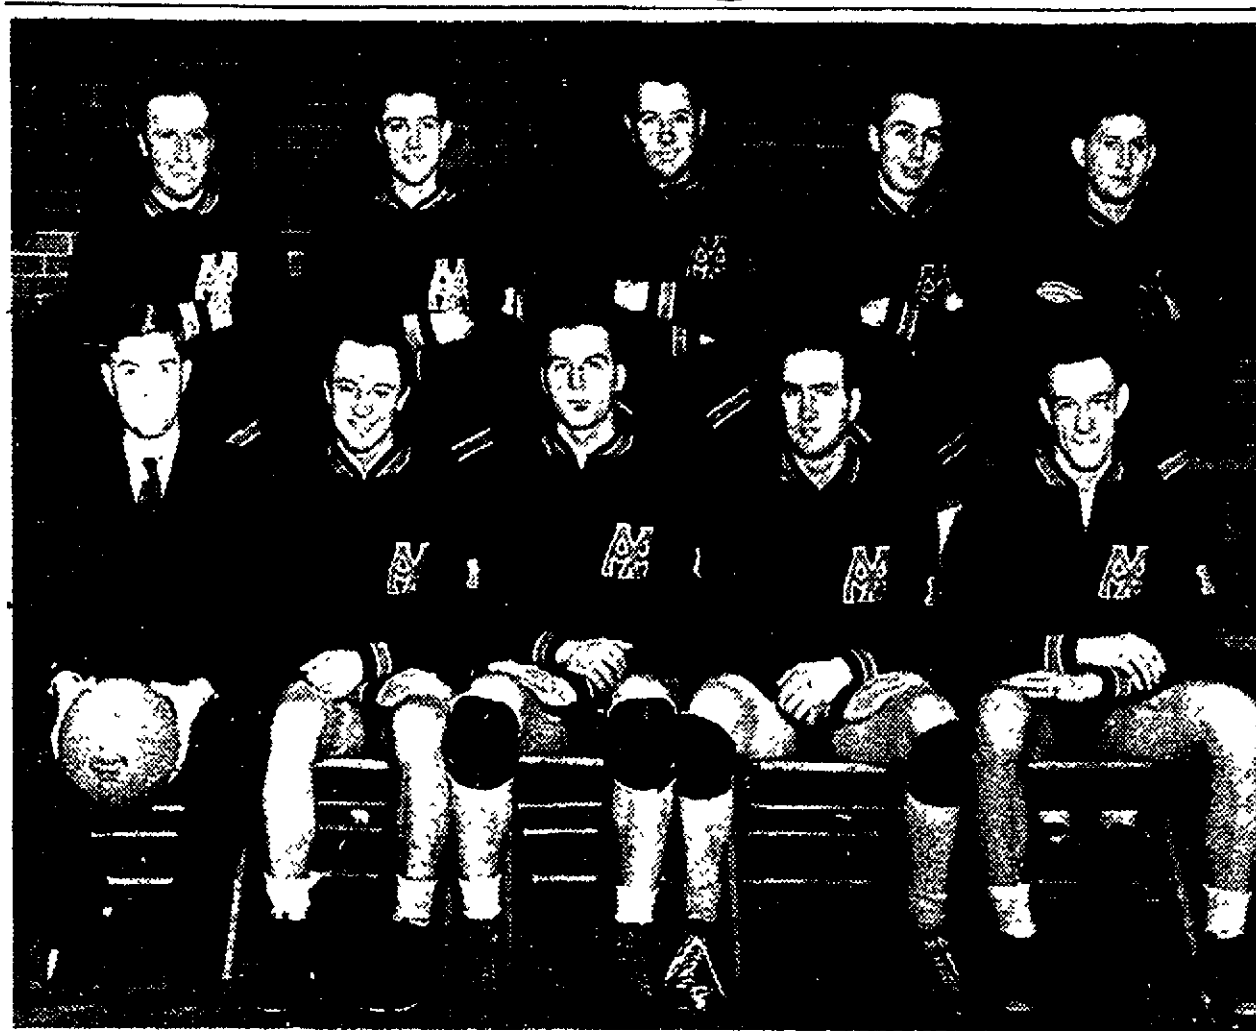

The veterans are Captain Milner, Blocher playing his final year at guard, Bill Larson, forward, and Sveto Krenar, guard, who causes Lawrence trouble in any sports. The sophomores are Jim Rember, giant center and guard, Lloyd Williams, center, Ken Miller, forward, and Stan Ardziejewski, center.

Again Beloit Monday evening, Ardziejewski handled the ball well in the pivot position and his work impressed Coach Denney who scouted the game. Blocher's shooting from guard was another feature as was the work of Rember. In the Beloit game, the Crimson caused most have by eluding opponents and driving in to score.

Lawrence drills this week have been designed to speed up the Viking offense and get under the hoop offenser. Considerable time also has been put on defense against the type of play used by Ripon.

Fresh Will Play
The Lawrence-Ripon freshman game is expected to be almost as interesting as the varsity battle. The Viking yearlings will show several men who won their first case honors in Appleton and valley high schools.

Warren Buesing, Appleton, will be at one forward and for a time may have Jimmie Flower, Kimberly high, as his running mate. Bob Morris, formerly at Appleton high, will be at one guard and will have for a running mate, Bob Olsen of East De Pere, a brother of Cliff Olsen, Vase star of a few years back. Another guard combination will be Ben Ewers, son of Cappy Ewers, Edger-

LITTLE CHUTE A.A. WILL ENTERTAIN HILBERT FRIDAY

Little Chute Athletic association basketball team will play the Hilbert club Friday evening at St. John gymnasium, Little Chute. The invaders' lineup will feature among others, Johnny Rigney, pitcher, for the Chicago White Sox of the American Baseball league. He will talk between halves. Hilbert boasts a string of victories against all opposition that was not broken until Tuesday night at Clintonville. One of the victories was over Kimberly A.A. five. The roster squad above is, front row, left to right, Ray Look, assistant manager, Joe Versteegen, Don Peters, Pete Wildenberg and B. Bongers; rear row, left to right, Emil Van Dyke, manager, Mike Hammen, Harold Van Dyke, Ernie Versteegen and Duce Weyenberg. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Jess Neely Will Take Clemson Job Clemson Mentor Expected To Sign a Five Year Contract

Houston, Texas.—(U)—Spare Jess Neely, a southern gentleman who likes to take his time, hustled about for three days and wound up with a five-year contract to coach football at Rice Institute.

Acceptance of the Southwest conference school's offer climaxed a month long hunt for someone to succeed Jimmy Kitts, who fell under the ax after a pair of poor seasons.

Events surrounding the Clemson coach's part in the case moved too swiftly, Neely protested.

While no pact has been signed, the 42-year-old coach of the Cotton Bowl winners admitted his acceptance was based on a five-year contract with power to name his chief assistants. He refused to divulge the salary but it was believed to be $7,500 a year.

Bill Wallace, freshman football coach, and Cecil Grigg, backfield coach, will be retained on the Rice staff but Neely will be allowed to name his other assistants.

It was considered a certainty he would bring Frank Howard, Clemson line coach, if that school doesn't elevate Howard to the head position.

Neely will report Feb. 1 to prepare for spring practice.

STOUT DEFEATED
Menomonee.—(U)—Stout Institute was unable to hold its early lead and dropped a 45 to 39 basketball decision to Winona, Minn., Teachers last night. Worman of Stout and Bascier of Winona, both guards, divided scoring honors with 12 points each.

Lon high coach and a former Lawrence star and Bill Harvey. The center will be Phil Grossett, former Kenosha high pivot man.

Today's Guest Star
Dick Callum, Minneapolis Times-Tribune: "Significance of the coast league's move to purify itself is that it is designed to put it in step with the Big Ten."

Soon a virtual partnership will exist, leading to inter-conference games and possibly to an ultimate agreement for a meeting of the football champions in the Rose Bowl.

Billy Conn's next title defense will be against the winner of the Feb. 2 return bout between Bettina and Apostoli. And if the Florida blue laws can be stretched, the match may be held on a Sunday afternoon in Miami's Orange Bowl for the infantile paralysis fund. . . The Boes are interested in putting a farm in some eastern class C circuit. . . Kansas, which gave us Jess Willard, thinks it has another heavyweight hope in Tony Novak, former A. U. champ who began his pro career with a win Tuesday night.

Bub Fox, Tennessee's backstop, hits .400 in baseball and big league scouts are interested. . . And they are not shying off because he spells it with an extra "x" either.

SORENSEN BAKERS, leading the City-Y.M.C.A. Basketball league, will sit idly by tonight as the other teams battle for honors and the Valley Sports attempt to join the Bakers in first place. The Bakers draw the week's bye.

The Valley Sports will show in the 8:30 game and shouldn't have too much trouble for they meet the Central Paper squad. The latter has been improving with every start but the Sports have too much power. Last week the Sports dropped the Lutz Ice while the Papers were losing to the Wire Works.

The first game tonight will have the Wires meeting the Lutz Ice. If Karl Lillge has returned to the Ice lineup the team will be a heavy favorite to cop.

In the evening's final game, at 9:20, the Pond Sports will clash with the Town Taxi with the outcome a tossup.

HAS 11 PERFECT GAMES

New York.—(U)—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced they had come to terms with veteran right-hander Wes Ferrell, and that the former American leaguer would report to the Clearwater (Fla.) training camp with the first Dodger squad Feb. 15.

Although Ferrell was released by the New York Yankees after a poor 1939 season, Manager Leo Durocher believed he can help the 31-year-old hurler, who said in Sarasota, Fla. the other day, that he'd take a minor league job if he couldn't land in the majors again.

Ferrell has pitched for the Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox, Washington Senators and Yankees.

Mel Harder, Milnar Expect Cleveland To Stop Champions

Cleveland.—(U)—Many a baseball pennant, won in the effortless security of the hot stove league, is fumbled away in the summer. But a pair of Cleveland pitchers refused today to concede anything to the New York Yankees in the 1940 American league race.

The veteran Mel Harder, afflicted with a lame salary wing the first two months last season, and Al Milnar, then just an untried southpaw with lots of stuff and no control, pointed to themselves as two of the reasons.

Other factors, the hurlers said, are Lou Boudreau, a newcomer making the grade in the Indians' perennial gap at shortstop; Oscar Grimes, infield handy-man, and Ray Mack, second baseman.

Three times a week Harder and Milnar work out on a program designed to help each produce 20 victories.

"We have a good chance of winning if we get a few breaks," declared Milnar, perspiring from a game of handball.

Declared Harder: "I'm going to do everything in the world to get myself in shape the start of this season. I cut loose too soon last year."

Piney Woods Cagers at Kimberly Club Tonight

KIMBERLY—Clever basketball and fine entertainment is what the Piney Woods Negro collegian squad will offer when it meets the A.A. cagers at the clubhouse Thursday evening. The contest will start at 8:15 following a preliminary.

"Smoky" Joe Saunders, a guard, also is a young Bill Robinson at tap dancing. Despite the fact that Saunders had both hands and part of one arm amputated, he can play a mighty efficient game at his position. There also will be a quartet to chime out southern Negro melodies.

Saunders basketball performance is supported by tricky passing, clever ball handling and accurate shooting by the rest of the team. The squad is made up of tall and heavy members and has played in many parts of the United States and Canada. It is coached and managed by L. W. Payne.

The team's personnel includes W. D. Kent, all-conference man, 6 feet, 3 inches who weighs 165 pounds and plays guard; Frank Ford is 6-1, and is a 3-letter man; Jack Holmes is one of the fastest men on the court, plays forward and is 5-8 and weighs 150 pounds; George Williams is 5-7, weighs 160 pounds and is the long shooter of the squad; Lee Smith is another forward while Lee Payne is 6-3 and plays center.

Kimberly's win over Rothschild Sunday, 57-35, has put the team in high spirits and it is determined to give the Negro lads an interesting contest.

Baseball's Man Of The Decade

Gehrig

BY DILLON GRAHAM
New York — (P) — Babe Ruth overshadowed him as the Thirties came in. Joe DiMaggio outshined him as the Forties approached. But during the 10-year stretch he was the "Iron Horse," durable, powerful, dependable. Lou Gehrig is our choice as baseball's Man of the Decade.

Through the stretch he was one of the American league's finest hitters and the key figure and captain of the New York Yankees, perhaps the greatest team ever assembled.

Lou was sports' most durable star. His only rivals were polo's Tommy Hitchcock and track's Glenn Cunningham. He was the last word in lability. In May paralysis forced him to end his consecutive game string at 2,130—about a thousand more games than any other player had competed in consecutively, a record that most likely never will be surpassed. For more than 14 years he played in every Yankee game, regular season and World series.

Plenty of Aces
The Thirties produced some great diamond aces—Sluggers Jimmy Faux home run biffer, twice American league batting champion, three time runs batted in leader. Joe Medwick, one of the finest hitters in National league annals.

Dizzy Dean, the popoff guy with the buggy-whip arm who won more than 20 games a year for four straight seasons. Lefty Grove, who pitched the American league in earned-run pitching average for nine years, won 108 games in four seasons.

Carl Hubbell, 20-plus winner for five successive years, probably the National league's best of the Thirties. DiMaggio, who came with a rush late in the stretch and may go down as No. 1 among baseball's all-time aces. Bob Feller, Mel Ott, Red Ruffing.

They were great. But, in our book, Gehrig was the man.

Three times in the decade he led his league in runs-batted-in and set a record of 184 in 1931. Once, in 1934, he was batting champion. Three years ago he was voted the most valuable player.

For 13 straight years he scored 100 or more runs. Thirteen years he hit for 300 or more total bases. Thirteen seasons he batted in 100 or more runs. He hit four home runs in one game and blasted 23 homers with the bases loaded. These were all records.

Ruth ruled golden decade; Gehrig tops in last one.

He played in seven world series, 34 games, with a batting average of .361 and held the record for runs batted in with 35. It would require a column of type to list his records.

Ruth the Standout
Ruth was the outstanding figure among the Yankees during most of Gehrig's years, although Lou lacking the Babe's color, outplayed him some of those years. And when Ruth passed on Gehrig had only a year or so of glory before the great rookie DiMaggio ousted him as the top Yankee attraction.

Neither Gehrig, the Man of the Thirties, nor the top figure of any other baseball decade could compare with Ruth, who dominated the game in the Twenties. Ruth's feats are still too well remembered to warrant much repeating here. His fame was based chiefly on his commanding, particularly his ability to crash out home runs. When he quit he had 76 records on the book. Before he turned to out-fielding he was one of the best southpaw pitchers.

He earned the biggest salary in history, $80,000 in 1930-31, and took more than three-quarters of a million in salary during his playing days. Babe's every turn was front page news. His tummy ache in North Carolina from eating too many hot dogs was chronicled around the world. Babe will always remain as the greatest figure in baseball history.

America OUT-OF-DOORS

KEEP UP YOUR SKILL BY WINTER PRACTICE

By Harold Hollis

G ET that wrist in shape before you start your fishing vacation this year and it will not only save you many aches and pains, but will also save you many fish during the year. If you keep your wrist in condition during the winter months you will be ready for the big days and will be much more skilled than if you neglected your practice.

Proper use of a bait or fly rod depends upon a plant wrist that follows through in a coordinated manner. I have known old timers to walk along the street at this season of the year swinging a light iron rod about eighteen inches long to keep their wrist action supple.

The average caster uses his arm and body too much in casting a bait, and fails to realize what tremendous power he can get from his wrist and what excellent leverage can be obtained. Practice of a wrist swing will bring ability to get the most out of a cast without heaving around like a hammer thrower.

With the wrist alone, the good caster can send his lures to satisfactory distances for all types of fishing except the extraordinary. Some of the most expert at casting as well as casting never send their baits out more than thirty or forty feet.

The wrist is just as important in fly casting although more arm action is necessary, of course. The sound application of leverage is the secret of good casting under any condition. The angler, through practice, will learn of the tremendous leverage that is in any good rod, and will make use of it and save his own energy and muscles. Casting all day long can be a terrific strain on anyone who doesn't do the thing properly.

Use your wrist in the casting motion upon every opportunity and when at all possible during these days actually cast. When the weather is right this can be done in a backyard, in most indoor gymnasiums and in many other places. By removing the hooks from an ordinary plug, a good practice casting bait may be made, and made at no extra expense. Watch out for the family laundry or the neighbors, if you cast in the yard. No foolin'.

The Marquette cagers, who play many of their local games in the Milwaukee Auditorium, have turned in 14 consecutive victories in their gym.

Wauwata and Iola will take up their argument for the remaining first division berth in a game at Wauwata, while Manawa and Amherst, neither of which has a league victory, will settle the temporary cellar occupant in a contest at Amherst.

WORLD OF STAMPS

After months during which information about the "Famous Americans" series came in dribbles, advanced illustrations have been released for the first group of five, to appear from January 29 to February 13.

If these first five are representative of the whole, then the series may well be a philatelic triumph, artistically. A conservative, attractive design ably sets off the clear-cut, detailed portraits.

Apparently the design will be similar for the six groups to come except for the motif identifying each group. In this first group of five the motif consists of book, scroll and ink, to denote the fact that the portraits are of authors.

Design for the author group—consisting of Washington Irving, James Fenimore Cooper, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Louisa May Alcott, and Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain)—was executed, it is reported, by William Roach of the art staff of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

American stamp dealers are discussing these days the prospect that the center of the world stamp trade may shift from London to New York because of the war.

London dealers have been handicapped by wartime restrictions. They must have permits to send or receive postage and revenue stamps from 28 countries. If the war continues, their export and import of stamps may be well high halted. The Pan-American market already is beginning to look to the United States; the European trade may find it necessary to follow suit.

Afghanistan Air-Mails
For the first time in its philatelic history, Afghanistan has issued air-mail stamps. On three stamps—5-afgani orange; 10-afgani blue and 20-afgani light green—a plane is pictured above Kabul, nestling among the nation's desolate mountains. The stamps are inscribed "Postes Aeriennes D'Afghanistan."

The nation also has issued a new set with designs adopted from previous adhesives. The set is described as follows: 16 pul green and 20p claret, Palace of the Amir; 25p carmine and 40p gray, Kabul Barracks; 50 orange and 60p purple, Independence Monument; 75p blue and 80p dark brown, monument and portrait of Zahir Shah; 1 Afghani claret and 2a carmine, portrait of Zahir Shah.

Claim Each Case of Baldness Must be Considered Separately

Madison — "Each case of baldness must be considered separately," the state medical society said in a health bulletin today.

"Baldness is a disease process which requires competent medical study to determine its causes in each individual case, and to direct its successful treatment. There are many kinds of baldness and many causes. Hair loss may be partial or complete and it may affect the scalp only, or the entire body. While some cases of hair loss are the result of inherited causes or predisposition, the majority is due to acquired disease. Such disease may be local, affecting only the scalp, or systemic or general, affecting the scalp indirectly through disturbances of the general health. Examples of the latter are the loss of hair following severe fevers and of wasting diseases and examples of the former are any of a large group of skin diseases directly involving the scalp or affecting only the hair.

Need Medical Advice
"In the majority of cases of baldness a medical knowledge of skin diseases is necessary for the successful treatment of the scalp diseases responsible for premature loss of hair.

"The prevention of baldness is often a matter of hygiene. If the hair is properly brushed and combed daily and if the scalp is washed when it becomes dirty, susceptibility to certain types of scalp and hair diseases is reduced. On the other hand, if proper scalp hygiene is neglected and if public combs and brushes are promiscuously used, the liability to scalp diseases and consequent baldness is increased.

"A small amount of hair loss occurs normally almost continuously and thinning of the hair in late adult life is a normal process. But if the loss of hair is very profuse, or if it is associated with other symptoms of scalp disease, such as excessive scale formation, commonly referred to as dandruff, increased dryness, excessive oiliness, itching, or the presence of skin eruptions, it is likely that a scalp disease or some other disturbance of the individual's health has occurred. It is most important then that the patient consult a physician for successful treatment."

These held their organization meeting at 9:30 Thursday morning at the bank to elect officers. A motion picture furnished the entertainment for the meeting.

The annual congregational church meeting was held at the church at 7:30 Tuesday evening. The reports of the various departments were read and accepted, each showing a gain over last year. The following officers were elected: Henry Krause, Jr., clerk; Mrs. Ellis Hopkins, financial secretary; Mrs. Mike Trautfler, treasurer and Sunday school superintendent; Mrs. Donald Brownson, organist; Jake VanWyk, trustee for three years; Mrs. Tony Freiman, deaconess; Mrs. Mary Chamberlain, missionary treasurer; Mrs. Charles Shepherd, delegate for the year.

Name Lime Salesman in Southern Half of County

Chilton — Ted Reiser, Chilton, started work Monday as lime salesman for the southern half of Calumet county. The agricultural committee of Calumet county found it necessary to make this appointment because of the increased production at the lime pit due to the longer working hours and the improvements made on the crusher by Lewis Gerhartz, the owner, at Stockbridge. As more and more farmers have become acquainted with the many advantages of using this crushed limestone in the barn, the demand has continued to increase. A. L. McMahon, county agent, stated that reports from the soil testing program indicate the need of lime on some of the fields to restore them to a sweet or alkaline condition so necessary for a good stand of clover or alfalfa. Many farmers are using the crushed limestone as a supplement for the feeding of poultry, hogs, and many mineral mixtures for their dairy cows, he said, and the experimental station reports that it is excellent for all of these purposes.

I CONTAIN AN AMAZING
NEW "SUDS-BOOSTER"

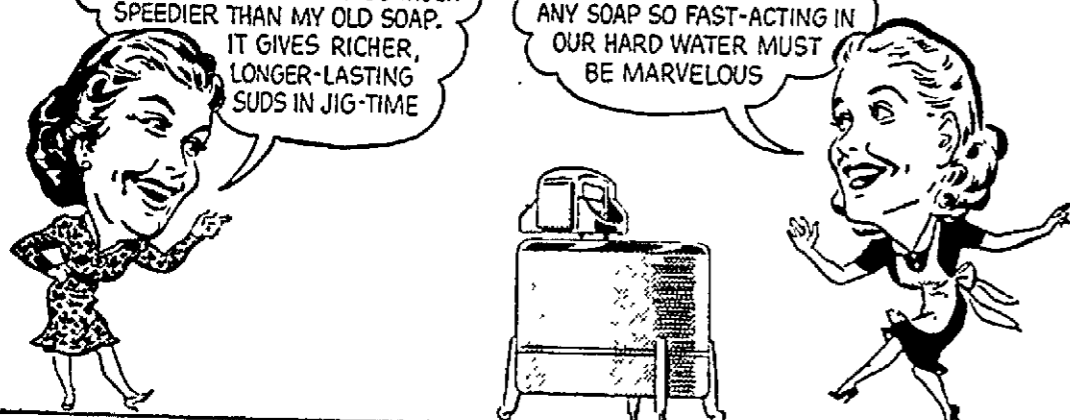

WHY WASTE TIME WITH YOUR
SLOW-POKE SOAP? TRY MY
SOAP... IT BURSTS INTO SUDS
IN A JIFFY... SO MUCH FASTER THAN THAT SOAP YOU'RE USING

WELL, IN THAT CASE,
YOU CAN BE SURE
I'LL TRY IT

THE NEW 1940 RINSO IS SO MUCH
SWIFTER THAN MY OLD SOAP.
IT GIVES RICHER,
LONGER-LASTING
SUDS IN JIG-TIME

ANY SOAP SO FAST-ACTING IN OUR HARD WATER MUST BE MARVELOUS

LATER

HELEEN, IT'S TRUE! THE NEW RINSO CERTAINLY LICKS OUR HARD WATER ALL RIGHT. IT GIVES AT LEAST 3 TIMES
AS MUCH SUDS AS THAT LAZY SOAP
I ONCE USED. BEST OF ALL, MY CLOTHES
LOOK AS MUCH AS 10 SHADES WHITER

YOU'LL FIND RINSO IS SAFE
FOR ALL WASHABLE COLORS,
TOO... AND SO EASY
ON YOUR HANDS!

WASHING DISHES IN RINSO'S FAST-WORKING, LONG-
LASTING SUDS IS SO MUCH EASIER AND IT'S ECONOMICAL, TOO. AND MY, HOW DISHES, POTS AND PANS SHINE!

Marvelous for tub washing, too—SOAKS clothes clean
No washer? Then you simply must use the New Richer "Top-Speed"
Rinso. Its active suds soak clothes amazingly clean without hard scrubbing or boiling. Saves work, saves the clothes—saves you!

Certified Corned Beef

During the Holiday months, housewives are faced with the problem of serving meals which give a balance to rich Turkey, Chicken, and Duck dinners.

Corned Beef is a meat which provides a delightful relief and change from other cuts of meat and fowl. It has been on the receiving end of many remarks which intimate that this particular dish is not one of which to be proud. Such an attitude is unfair because when Certified Corned Beef is properly prepared it becomes one of the most appetizing and delicious meats the housewife could offer to her family.

121,000 'C-Men' Ready to Ask Grand Total of Seven Billion Questions in Broadened Census

BY ALEXANDER E. GEORGE
Washington.—Government experts are trying to streamline the 1940 census—biggest set of questions ever to be fired by Uncle Sam at Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public. Starting April 1, an army of 121,000 bell-ringers will carry these questions into every American home.

The census-taking job formerly was a comparatively simple one of finding out the number of persons, their age, and the amount of illiteracy in the United States.

This time a flock of new questions will be aimed at getting a nation-wide picture of employment, work experience, finances, housing, and educational background of Americans. Also sought will be a

TO THE LADIES
The feminine question on the age question has caused statisticians to wonder just how accurate are the age returns from women. Hence, an astute C-man worked out a diplomatic approach which will be widely used.

The census-taker will address the ostensible lady of the house in the third person, asking her "How old is Mary Jones?" instead of "Are you Mary Jones and how old are you?"

That, it is expected, will be a more dependable method of obtaining a correct and unembarrassed answer.

Babies under one year of age and persons who think they are 100 years old present two of the biggest census uncertainties. Many householders, apparently forgetting that infants are "regular persons," fail to report them.

A large number of people in the nineties either are hazy about their exact age or like to boast of being 100. Consequently, it is believed that a goodly percentage of the 3,900 who were reported centenarians in 1930 had not attained the 100-year mark.

Boys Who Damaged Tracks Sentenced

13 and 16 Year Olds are Given Industrial School Terms

Marquette.—(P)—County Judge William F. Haase committed two youths, 13 and 16 years old, to the industrial school at Waushara yesterday after a juvenile court hearing here into damage done to Milwaukee road tracks and signal wires at Pound, Wis.

The court admonished parents of two younger boys who also were seized in connection with the vandalism committed last New Year's day.

The four boys, all residents of Pound, had admitted tampering with the track "to see what would happen."

Nine railroad spikes were driven between track joints and 32 sets of bond wires for two electric crossing signals were pulled out of position. Subsequently a freight and four passenger trains passed over the damaged section. Officials said the slow moving freight came first and merely flattened the wires, whereas a fast train probably would have severed them.

General Weather

A low pressure area which now overlies the upper Mississippi valley has been attended by rain or snow since yesterday morning over all the central states. Rain or snow also fell over the central Rocky mountains and along the Pacific coast. However, generally fair weather prevailed this morning over the central and southern plains states and along the Atlantic coast.

It is much warmer over the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the Lake region, but it is colder over the northern Rocky mountains.

More snow is expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with lower temperature.

Democrats are Ired At Schafer's Remark

Washington.—(P)—Representative Schafer (R-Wis.) brought a half-dozen Democrats to their feet in the house yesterday with a request to insert in the record the list of guests at the "new deal-one hundred-dollar-per-plate shakedown dinner."

Representative Eberhardt (D-Pa.) objected because of the "maine" in which the request was made. "Objection is heard," Speaker Bankhead observed, denying Schafer's request.

Dickinson Loses Michigan Fight

Fails to Oust State Crippled Children Commission Members

Lansing, Mich.—(P)—Peace reigns again between the state crippled children commission and Governor Luren D. Dickinson, who once tried to oust all of its members.

The commission, yesterday stood fast in its refusal to dismiss or demote Dr. W. S. Ramsey, its secretary-director, but complied with the governor's demands for sharp cuts in the fees it allows doctors for treating crippled and afflicted children. It ordered far reaching reforms put into effect.

Hugh E. Van de Walker, Detroit, commission chairman, said he and his colleagues had tried previously to effect the reforms but failed because state officials refused to permit them to spend the money required. They now have permission to spend $15,000 to $20,000 for the reforms.

A medical "filter" system—groups of physicians serving without pay to determine the need for treatment of children—is to be revitalized under the new program. It was abandoned in many counties after the doctor members complained that local politicians had over-riden their judgment for political reasons on a number of cases.

Seymour Man Named Veterinary Officer

Madison.—(P)—A stray dog from Milwaukee went to a merciful death today after being exhibited under anesthetic before the Wisconsin Veterinary Medical association in a bone setting demonstration.

A. W. Lange, Milwaukee, added a realistic touch to the association's annual convention when he brought the animal to today's meeting to demonstrate how splints should be applied for bone fractures in small animals.

The dog, Lange said, was picked up by Milwaukee police after one of its back legs was broken by an automobile. He added the animal would be destroyed before regaining consciousness.

G. A. Gettelman, Hartford, was elected president of the association, succeeding J. S. Healy, Madison. R. C. Finkle, Seymour, was named vice president and C. M. Heath, La Crosse, a member of the executive committee.

Hortonville Doctors Have Busy Afternoon

Hortonville.—Hortonville physicians were kept busy yesterday afternoon treating serious wounds resulting from various accidents.

James McMeekin, retired business man, lost a part of one finger and cut another badly while working with a planing machine in a shop at the rear of his home.

A 2-year-old son of Victor Thern, town of Liberty, was treated for smashed fingers, having caught them in a door at his home.

Wayne Fouts, Hortonville youth, cut a toe on his right foot while chopping wood at his home.

Girl Athletes to Go On Supper Hike Friday

A supper hike for the Girls' Athletic association of Appleton High school is being planned by Rilla Swamp and Virginia Layendecker. The girls will hold their winter outdoor Friday afternoon. One of the special projects of the G. A. A. this year is keeping the trophies clean. The committee in charge consists of June Wiegert, Mildred Dingeldien, Margaret Forster, Birdena Drisk, Evelyn Kasten, Doris Ardell, Willette Wenzel, Geraldine Lyman and Rita Schweitzer.

Government Acquires Title to State Lands

Washington.—(P)—The federal government has acquired title to forest lands equal to the combined areas of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont during the last 28 years, the National Forest Reservation commission reported today.

Purchases, authorized by the weeks law of 1911, total 16,369,751 acres and cost $61,260,435.

Among the states in which the purchases were made since 1911, and the acreage, were:

Illinois, 173,809; Indiana, 34,000; Iowa, 100; Kentucky, 421,280; Michigan, 1,792,267; Missouri, 1,163,077; Ohio, 38,734; Wisconsin, 1,325,373.

Vagrant Wanted for Violation of Parole

A check made by Chief of Police George T. Prim on a transient, John Bentley, sentenced Monday in municipal court to 20 days for vagrancy, with the Federal Bureau of Investigation has disclosed that the man is wanted at Columbus, Ohio, for violation of parole. Bentley was removed from the county detention camp to the city jail this morning pending word from the Ohio parole division.

Capital Punishment Being Attacked in Massachusetts

Boston.—(P)—With six 'teen-age defendants, including a girl of 17, awaiting trial in Massachusetts on first degree murder charges, opponents of the death penalty opened a new attack today upon capital punishment.

Mrs. Herbert Ehrmann, secretary of the Massachusetts Council for the Abolition of the Death Penalty, asserted in a statement that if any of the six were convicted of first degree murder, Bay state law permitted but one sentence—death—and that public abhorrence would be banished from the state. She contended a seven-year-old child could be executed under present statutes.

Four of the boys awaiting trial are but 17 years old and the fifth is the girl's 18-year-old ex-soldier boy friend.

Cancer Can be Bred Out of Family, Noted Authority Says

Urbana, Ill.—(P)—Dr. Maur Slye, noted research authority on the factor of inheritance in cancer, said today "all diseases, including cancer, can be controlled by scientific handling of environment and heredity."

Dr. Slye, associate professor of pathology at the University of Chicago, spoke on the program of the annual farm and home week at the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Dr. Slye holds that cancer can be bred out of a human family. She bases her conclusions on the study, begun in 1908 of the family trees of 14,000 mice under controlled conditions in a laboratory.

"The offspring of two individuals will be free from cancer if the families of both parents are entirely cancer-free," she said. If one parent has cancer and the other is entirely cancer-free, the immediate offspring are themselves free, she continued.

But these offspring can transmit susceptibility to cancer to some of their offspring, if mated with individuals who also carry cancer susceptibility, she said. If both parents are cancerous, the offspring inherit the tendency to be susceptible.

In regard to environment she said there are two fundamental necessities—complete sanitation at all times and the avoidance of all injuries, single or repeated. No injury or disorder of the body, internal or external, should be allowed to become chronic, she said.

Power Authorities Confer on Seaway

New York and Federal Groups Discuss St. Lawrence River Project

Washington.—(P)—The state department and the federal power commission consulted the New York state power authority late yesterday on results attained at Ottawa by the American delegation which discussed the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway and power development with Canadian officials.

The delegation, consisting of Adolf A. Berle, Jr., assistant secretary of state; Leland Olds, chairman of the federal power commission, and John D. Hickerson, assistant chief of the European division of the state department, returned to Washington late in the day.

Berle reported to Secretary Hull on the delegation's conferences at Ottawa. It was announced that a Canadian delegation would come to Washington to enter into further conferences Jan. 22.

Although various states are expected by officials to benefit by the construction of the deep waterway, New York state is the one on whose shores the American portions of the power development would be located.

Young Detroit Mayor Scolds Business Men

Detroit.—(P)—Young Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, who took office yesterday, scolded the "publicity it deserves," among other things, has jumped into that job with both feet.

Calling a spade a spade, Mayor Jeffries, who is 39 and has been in office less than a fortnight, raked the city's leading business men over the coals yesterday.

Choosing the Rotary club's annual "municipal government" luncheon to loose some vehemence, the rookie mayor accused business men with this stinger:

"What you did—and it had an injurious effect on Detroit—was to sit back on your haunches and say that the town was going to hell in a handkerchief."

Mayor Jeffries has deplored what he called Detroit's "false reputation" in other cities largely because of its strikes. He urged the business men to "get together" and see that Detroit regains "its place in the sun in this country."

Six Captains Eligible For Guard Promotions

Madison.—(P)—Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell announced today that six captains in the Wisconsin National Guard cavalry passed examinations with grades making them eligible for appointment as majors.

They were Erwin P. Beyer, of Madison; Rex S. Hovey, of Eau Claire; M. E. Rabedanz, of Kenosha; Douglas J. McKenzie, of Stanley; and Everett C. Hart and Herbert E. Whitaker, of Milwaukee.

Three majors will be named from the list soon, Immell said.

New London Cage Squad Will Meet Kaukauna Friday

Victory Would Move Red And White Team Into Second Place

New London — With Menasha safely out of the way, New London fans are looking forward to what should be the best basketball game on the New London court so far this season when Kaukauna invades the Washington High school gym Friday evening to defend its claim to second place in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference standings. The Red and White remain undefeated on their home floor so far this season.

The New London cagers were bruised and sore Wednesday as the result of the rough and tumble game with the Bluejays Tuesday night and Coach Harold Isaacson plans to take it easy on the boys during practice this week so they can recuperate for tomorrow night's tilt. Meiklejohn suffered bruised ribs and Harold Poes nursed a bruised back, both players monopolizing the lamps for heat treatment at the school yesterday.

A win for New London will reverse the situation for Kaukauna, placing the Red and White in second place. The Kaws beat Menasha 35 to 18. West DePere 28 to 20 and Clintonville 37 to 23, all on their own floor. They won over Neenah 18 to 15 on the latter's floor. New London beat Menasha 32 to 21 and lost to Shawano 34 to 32 and to Neenah 29 to 26 on the opponents' floor, drubbing Clintonville 38 to 19 and West DePere 38 to 11 at home.

The usual line-up will take the starting assignment. Friday night with the Bee's playing a preliminary at 7 o'clock and the regular tilt starting about 8 o'clock.

Witte and Hesolton of Appleton will officiate at the game.
